POSTREWARD FOR BOMBERS

POLITICAL FOES OF DENEEN RAISE FUND TO GET DYNAMITERS

Federal Action Is Coming—Chicago Homes Guarded

CHICAGO, March 28.—A fortune of $65,000 today awaits the person who can name the men responsible for the ruthless bombings which Monday night endangered eight lives and partially demolished the homes of United States Senator Charles S. Deneen and Judge John A. Swanson.

To make the reward offering more alluring, it provides that if the informant should be one of the actual perpetrators of the crime or in any manner involved, he will be immune from arrest and prosecution.

This huge reward, a record in Illinois for a crime involving no fatalities, was posted by twelve local Republican leaders, all opposed to the Republican faction headed by Senator Deneen.

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, rival in the April primaries of Judge Swanson, headed the list with $10,000 of his personal fortune, Mayor William Hale Thompson, Crowe's political ally, added $5,000, as did Commissioner of Police Michael Hughes, a Thompson appointee.

Nine other leaders in the Thompson-Crowe organization, who contributed $5,000 each to the reward fund, are: Homer K. Galpin, George F. Harding, Eugene R. Pike, Charles V. Barrett, Bernard W. Snow, Lawrence F. King, Edward J. Brundage, John W. Jaranowski and Sheriff John Graydon.

These men gave as their reason that they believed the bombings had been inspired by Deneen's own organization to "discredit Thompson and Crowe," and that they were more interested than anyone else in bringing the guilty to justice.

Meanwhile Police Commissioner Hughes announced there have been no arrests and "no new developments" in the sensational case during the past twenty-four hours.

Three separate inquiries are under way, one by the state's attorney, one by the police department and the third by special investigators hired by the Deneen-Swanson organization.

Federal intervention, through action in the United States senate was forecast as a certainty today by a high official in the federal building.

The senate action, it was said, will be based on a resolution to be introduced by one of Senator Deneen's colleagues. Grounds will be that not only was a member of the senate a target of an intimidatory attack, but that the offense was committed during a national election campaign.

Plain clothes men and police officers, bristling with arms, are stationed about the home of all political leaders, regardless of party or faction. The homes of Mayor William Hale Thompson and State's Attorney Crowe are well fortified. Citizens go about the districts in terror, knowing not what minute another fearful outburst will occur.

To many of the frightened citizens, who for the first time seem to be awakening to the real danger of the situation, there was nothing humorous in Washington dispatches stating that senators advocated bringing marines from Nicaragua to Chicago. Many of these citizens, especially the neighbors of Senator Deneen and Judge Swanson, heartily endorsed the plan.

ENDURANCE FLIGHT STARTS IN FLORIDA

JACKSONVILLE BEACH, Fla., March 28.—Eddie Stinson and George Haldeman, soared from the beach here this morning at 7:35 o'clock in their huge monoplane, with a new world's endurance flight record as their objective. They plan to remain in the air more than 53 hours.

The big monoplane has been thoroughly tested and pronounced to be in perfect condition.

Their great Stinson-Detroit plane was fueled with 540 gallons of gasoline, sufficient to last sixty hours. The present record held by German aviators is 52 1-2 hours.

Stinson and Haldeman plan to fly over Jacksonville Beach, alternating at the controls. They may make short trips along the beach to Daytona St. Augustine.

Ideal weather prevailed.

FLY TO CANADA

FORD AIRPORT, DEARBORN, Mich., March 28.—Bernie Balchen and Floyd Bennett who will accompany Commander Richard E. Byrd on his South Pole expedition took off today for northern Canada in a Ford tri-motor monoplane.

TELEVISION MAY BE USED IN POLITICAL CAMPAIGN FOR 1932

Voters Will See And Hear Candidates Is Prophecy

CHICAGO, March 28.—In the political campaign of 1932, through its newly developed sister television—will enable millions to see, as well as hear, the distant speaker.

This was the prophecy voiced today by Major General J. G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, in a speech before the Chicago Association of Commerce.

In a glowing word picture of radio's bewildering strides and of its future possibilities, General Harbord said:

"It links the nations together in the betterment of relations and the promotion of enduring peace. The printed page is already flashed across the oceans. International broadcasting will become commonplace. The operas of Europe and the incomparable music of those great countries to the south of ours will be nightly heard in American homes."

The temple bells of Asia will chime for us, and from that land of old religions will come the philosophies of her ancient races. Old and new civilizations will throbb together to the same intellectual appeal and to the same artistic emotions. The thought currents of all humanity will mingle, their ebb and flow no longer impeded by dividing oceans."

As to the practical uses and possibilities of radio, in times of national emergency, General Harbord declared:

"In the event of great dangers to our country, if unhappily they should come again, radio has made it possible for the president to appeal in his own voice to our millions, personally rallying them to the support of our government and its institutions."

SEVEN BODIES FOUND IN RUINS

ROME, March 28.—With seven bodies recovered, soldiers were engaged today in rescue work in Udine Province where a severe earthquake did extensive damage yesterday. The injured are estimated at from thirty to forty.

The village of Versignis was nearly destroyed. The village priest had just celebrated a thanksgiving service for the population's escape from Monday's earthquake when the new tremors began. The church in which the thanksgiving service had been held collapsed a few minutes after the earthquake had left it.

The tremors precipitated numerous landslides in the neighboring mountains.

Some villages were completely deserted, the people taking refuge in the fields.

STILL IN COMA

PAINEVILLE, O., March 28.—Nineteen-year-old Helen Buschmann, of Westville, Mass., was still unconscious in Memorial Hospital here today—73 days after being struck by an auto bus near Mentor, O. She still is being fed artificially and her condition remains practically unchanged, according to hospital attaches.

DISTRICT EMERGES FROM SCARE; COLD RELIEVES VERMONT

Swollen New England Streams Claim Two Lives

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—Northern and central California emerged today from the destructive floods which ravaged towns and agricultural areas for a period of some forty-eight hours.

With government weather observers predicting fair climate, the Sacramento River and its tributaries continued to recede from the high levels which swept four persons to death, drove more than 300 residents of North Sacramento from their homes and caused heavy damage to crops, bridges, buildings, railroads and highways.

The only danger which threatened further depredations today was seen in reports that the Feather River still continued to creep upward on its banks in the higher reaches.

Although government observers were of the opinion that the Sacramento River will maintain high levels along its banks for at least four days, it was pointed out that this will be due to the drainage of water from adjacent flood areas and will not constitute a serious menace unless new rain storms descend.

Relief work, conducted by state agencies and the Red Cross, among the homeless of North Sacramento proceeded in orderly fashion, while details of the California National Guard patrolled the water-soaked suburbs of the state capital to guard against looting.

MONTPELIER, Vt., March 28.—Cold weather today checked the onrush of waters of the ice swollen streams of northern New England that threatened a repetition of the November flood. The cold dried out many muddy roads that were almost impassable, and prevented great damage to railroad roadbeds in this section.

Two lives were lost in the latest New England flood. The fatalities occurred at Gorham, N. H., in the new cut on the Peabody River. Two men were dynamiting an ice jam to prevent it from damaging a bridge down stream. The ice was suddenly swept from under them, and they were plunged into the turbulent stream and drowned.

Vermont, which suffered most in the November flood, again found its roads flooded and bridges threatened with destruction. Deep mud holes between this city and Burlington made motor traffic impossible except for light cars.

Three Americans killed when plane crashes in Mexico

Son Of Anna Katherine Greene One Of Flyers Lost.

MEXICO CITY, March 28.—The American consul today was making every effort to communicate with relatives of the three American flyers who were killed when their Fairchild plane crashed at Toluca, fifty miles from here.

The fliers were enroute from Nogales, Arizona to Mexico City. Sterling Rohlf, the pilot of the plane, and one passenger, Wallace Springer, were killed instantly. Another passenger, William E. King, died in the Toluca Hospital thirty minutes later.

It was said the fliers had contemplated attempting a non-stop flight from Mexico City to New York.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 28.—Sterling Rohlf, 40, who was killed with two other Americans in an airplane crash near Mexico City yesterday, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rohlf of 156 Park St., Buffalo. Mrs. Rohlf is the famous novelist known by the pen name of Anna Katherine Greene.

Mrs. Coolidge, accompanied by Dr. Joel F. Boone, White House physician, spent several hours at the hospital at her mother's bedside.

Mrs. Goodhue rested quietly during most of the night.

HEEL AND TOE MEN SHUN ALBUQUERQUE

LOS LUNAS, N. Mex., March 28.—C. C. ("Cross Country") Pyle, gave Albuquerque only a microscopic view of his short-panted athletes as they pushed eastward today into the desert fastness toward their twenty-fifth night control.

After battling sand and wind along the forty-nine-mile stretch between Old Laguna and Los Lunas, on the banks of the Rio Grande, the runners approved the decision of Pyle not to visit the New Mexico metropolis.

"Officials of Albuquerque demonstrated that they were not behind the race," Pyle said, "when they refused to permit our men to sell programs that the public may identify individual athletes. When that ultimatum was issued I had to revise my route accordingly. We still are following United States Highway No. 66, the Main Street of America." And in this case we are not using Albuquerque's altitudes.

UNITED STATES AND MEXICO AGREE ON OIL CONCESSIONS

MEXICO CITY, March 28.—After a controversy which continued over a period of eleven years, the governments of the United States and Mexico were in accord today on the subject of American oil concessions in Mexico.

President Calles yesterday signed the "regulations" which make possible the practical application of the recent amendments to the petroleum law. The amendments were designed to allow foreign oil companies to increase their operations in Mexico.

The signing followed long diplomatic conferences between President Calles and Ambassador Morrow. The action of the Mexican government in coming to terms with the United States on the oil question is regarded as a personal victory for Morrow.

The amendments sustain the principle that minerals beneath the ground are intangible property of the state, but they also affirm the concession granted to oil companies before the 1917 constitution was adopted.

HUNDREDS WANT TO FLY WASHINGTON, March 28.—America has become so thoroughly air-minded during the last year that the army cry out for help.

An announcement a month ago that a new class of 110 flying cadets would be admitted to air corps schools by examination April 10 has thus far produced 1,041 applications from eligible youths and almost as many more from persons manifestly unqualified. Last year's call produced less than 300 applications. Training corps officers estimate that 1,500 applications will be received before examination date.

Applications have come from every state in the union and from Panama, Hawaii, Alaska and the Philippines. California leads all other states in the number of aspiring Lindberghs.

CLEVELAND GUNMAN BELIEVED FATALLY SHOT ESCAPING PEN

Bold Break Foiled As Guard Shoots Fleeing Man

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—Bryan Keenan, 27, Cleveland gangster and convicted murderer lay unconscious and near death on a cot in the Ohio Penitentiary Hospital here today, following an unsuccessful attempt to escape from the penal institution late yesterday. Prison physicians say Keenan cannot recover as the shotgun slug that felled him, split the dome of the fugitive's liver.

Keenan was serving life for the killing of John Ran, a Cleveland bakery wagon driver. Keenan was a member of the Penitentiary band and as such spent his days in the idle house.

When an unloaded gravel truck was left standing near a gate with motor running, yesterday afternoon, Keenan ran to the truck, threw it into gear and sent crashing through a stockade gate toward an outer portal.

The mad prisoner swerved the heavy truck from the path of a second truck whose driver attempted to block Keenan's path, and in another moment the truck had battered through a street gate.

The motor stalled but Keenan jumped to the street and ran until a bullet from the shotgun of Tower Guard John Conrad felled him.

"Don't shoot," gasped Keenan as Guard H. C. Opper approached with pistol ready for action. Keenan fainted and was carried to the prison hospital.

PICTURE PLAYERS SAFE AFTER STORM

WILMINGTON, Cal., March 28.—With fifty motion picture actors and actresses on board, the five-masted schooner George W. Billings returned to port here early today after battling a fierce wind which caught the vessel as she was passing through San Pedro channel on a cruise.

The cinema folk were alarmed by the ferocity of the gale and a radio call for aid was sent to the harbor. A tug boat was immediately dispatched to the help of the schooner and some hours later both the movie boat and the rescue ship returned.

Among the actresses on board were Eva Southern and Shirley Palmer.

The schooner was not seriously damaged.

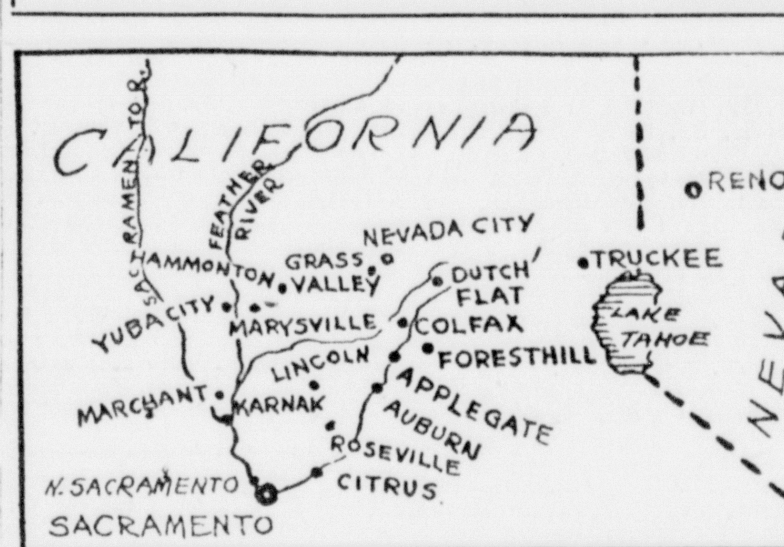

magnitude of his task was indicated by Mrs. Allen's latest ultimatum from the battle front, as follows:

"My husband can never come back to my house again. I have sent all his belongings away and I never want to see him again."

Mrs. Allen shipped her husband's belongings to a hotel at which "Peaches" was staying. That was after she made the charge that her husband had taken one of her bracelets and presented it to the vaudeville actress.

At that time Mrs. Allen said she would sue her husband for a separation. Today, however, she said she had no intention of beginning any legal action against him.

GERMAN MONOPLANE AWAITS FAVORABLE WEATHER FOR TRIP

Bremen Will Follow Southern Steamer Route To U. S.

DUBLIN, March 28.—Balked by unfavorable winds, the Junkers monoplane Bremen, in which three German airmen will hazard the dangers of a westward hop over the Atlantic remained in its hangar at the Baldonnel airfield near here today.

Favorable weather reports received last night gave the fliers hope that they might start today but later reports indicated that a hop-off would be foolhardy. If the adverse winds subside, the airmen will start at dawn tomorrow.

Captain Hermann Koehl, the pilot, inspected the plane after it had been thoroughly overhauled, refueled and provisioned following its flight from Berlin. He said the plane was in perfect condition.

The Bremen will follow the southern or steamship route rather than the northern "Great Circle" heretofore followed by transatlantic aviators, according to Baron Von Huenfeld, financial backer of the flight. The Baron will go along as a passenger.

Captain Koehl feels that by taking their southern route the danger of sleet formation will be materially lessened. The plane will be completely paraffined before start to further offset this hazard.

Arthur Spindler, a German aviator-mechanic, who accompanied Koehl from Berlin to Dublin, will act as relief pilot on the flight.

Frank Loose, a German aviator, who accompanied Koehl last year on his unsuccessful attempt to cross the Atlantic will act as relief pilot.

If the German fliers succeed in their contemplated flight, they will have been the first to cross the Atlantic from Europe. Seven persons, two of them women, have never been heard from after attempting the westward hop.

Koehl and his companions are anxious to go. They have great confidence in their plane and do not ask for perfect weather. The Bremen was thoroughly tested last summer on its first transatlantic attempt. It was forced to turn back after passing the west coast of Ireland and reached Dessau, Germany safely, after a flight of 2,200 miles under adverse conditions.

Koehl estimated it would take from thirty-one to thirty-six hours to reach Mitchell Field, L. I. The Bremen has a cruising range of forty-six hours in good weather and forty in bad weather. Its maximum speed is 130 miles an hour.

The Bremen is powered by a twelve cylinder motor of the same type as that which brought the record for endurance flying to Germany. It develops 240 horsepower.

The ship carries enough fuel for 4,500 miles. The distance from Baldonnel to Mitchell Field is approximately 3,500 miles.

BERLIN, Germany, March 28.—The occupants of the Junkers monoplane Bremen when it hops off at Baldonnel, Ireland, toward America will be Capt. Hermann Koehl, Baron Von Huenfeld and Arthur Spindler, according to information given to International News Service today by Mrs. Koehl.

"My husband will pilot the plane most of the time," said Mrs. Koehl. "Spindler will go as emergency pilot while Baron Von Huenfeld will be passenger. Fritz Loose was never connected with the enterprise. Herr Klose is not flying at all."

Despite the statement of Mrs. Koehl, Prof. Junkers, head of the Junkers Works, said he understood that Loose would be the relief pilot.

POSTMASTER KILLS BROTHER'S FIANCEE

WALKILL, N. Y., March 28.—A posse was searching the countryside today for Harry T. McHugh, 31, suspected of shooting his brother's fiancée here yesterday.

The girl, Marie Terwilliger, nineteen-year-old telephone operator, was shot in front of her home here following a quarrel with McHugh, according to police. She staggered across the street and fell dead.

McHugh is the postmaster of the village. Miss Margaret Goldsmith, a friend of the slain girl, told police that McHugh had accused Miss Terwilliger and his brother of "loose conduct." The quarrel followed, she said.

JURORS SEATED IN TRIAL OF CONVICT

NEW LEXINGTON, O., March 28.—Twenty male jurors today began hearing attorneys and witnesses in the first degree murder trial of Fred Kellogg, Toledo convict at the Junction City brick plant, charged with the first degree murder of Grant Winkley, a penal guard.

Pat Riley, Kellogg's companion in an attempt to escape, during which Winkley was fatally shot, was found guilty of second degree murder several weeks ago.

Bold Break Foiled As Guard Shoots Fleeing Man

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—Bryan Keenan, 27, Cleveland gangster and convicted murderer lay unconscious and near death on a cot in the Ohio Penitentiary Hospital here today, following an unsuccessful attempt to escape from the penal institution late yesterday.

Prison physicians say Keenan cannot recover as the shotgun slug that felled him, split the dome of the fugitive's liver.

Keenan was serving life for the killing of John Rau, a Cleveland bakery wagon driver. Keenan was a member of the Penitentiary band and as such spent his days in the idle house.

When an unloaded gravel truck was left standing near a gate with motor running, yesterday afternoon, Keenan ran to the truck, threw it into gear and sent crashing through a stockade gate toward an outer portal.

The mad prisoner swerved the heavy truck from the path of a second truck whose driver attempted to block Keenan's path, and in another moment the truck had battered through a street gate. The motor stalled but Keenan jumped to the street and ran until a bullet from the shotgun of Tower Guard John Conrad felled him.

"Don't shoot," gasped Keenan as Guard H. C. Opper approached with pistol ready for action. Keenan fainted and was carried to the prison hospital.

Picture Players Safe After Storm
WILMINGTON, Cal., March 28.—With sixty motion picture actors and actresses on board, the five-masted schooner George W. Billings returned to port here early today after battling a fierce wind which caught the vessel as she was passing through San Pedro channel on a cruise.

The cinema folk were alarmed by the ferocity of the gale and a radio call for aid was sent to the harbor. A tug boat was immediately dispatched to the help of the schooner and some hours later both the movie boat and the rescue ship returned.

Among the actresses on board were Eva Southern and Shirley Palmer.

The schooner was not seriously damaged.

GERMAN MONOPLANE AWAITS FAVORABLE WEATHER FOR TRIP

Bremen Will Follow Southern Steamer Route To U. S.

DUBLIN, March 28.—Balked by unfavorable winds, the Junkers monoplane Bremen, in which three German airmen will hazard the dangers of a westward hop over the Atlantic remained in its hangar at the Baldonnel airfield near here today.

Favorable weather reports received last night gave the fliers hope that they might start today but later reports indicated that a hop-off would be foolhardy. If the adverse winds subside, the airmen will start at dawn tomorrow.

Captain Hermann Koehl, the pilot, inspected the plane after it had been thoroughly overhauled, refueled and provisioned following its flight from Berlin. He said the plane was in perfect condition.

The Bremen will follow the southern or steamship route rather than the northern "Great Circle" heretofore followed by transatlantic aviators, according to Baron Von Huenfeldt, financial backer of the flight. The Baron will go along as a passenger.

Captain Koehl feels that by taking their southern route the danger of sleet formation will be materially lessened. The plane will be completely paraffined before starting.

Arthur Spindler, a German steam mechanic, who accompanied Koehl from Berlin to Dublin, will act as relief pilot on the flight.

Fritz Loose, a German aviator, who accompanied Koehl last year on his unsuccessful attempt to cross the Atlantic will act as relief pilot.

If the German fliers succeed in their contemplated flight, they will have been the first to cross the Atlantic from Europe. Seven persons, two of them women, have never been heard from after attempting the westward hop.

Koehl and his companions are anxious to go. They have great confidence in their plane and do not ask for perfect weather. The Bremen was thoroughly tested last summer in its first transatlantic attempt. It was forced to turn back after passing the west coast of Ireland and reached Dessau, Germany safely, after a flight of 2,200 miles under adverse conditions.

Koehl estimated it would take from thirty-one to thirty-six hours to reach Mitchell Field, L. I. The Bremen has a cruising range of forty-six hours in good weather and forty in bad weather. Its maximum speed is 130 miles an hour.

"My husband will pilot the plane as a type as that which brought the record for endurance flying to Germany. It develops 240 horse-power."

The ship carries enough fuel for 4,500 miles. The distance from Baldonnel to Mitchell Field is approximately 3,500 miles.

BERLIN, Germany, March 28.—The occupants of the Junkers monoplane Bremen when it hops off at Baldonnel Airfield, L. I. America will be Capt. Hermann Koehl, Baron Von Huenefeldt and Arthur Spindler, according to information given to International News Service today by Mrs. Koehl.

"Spindler will go as emergency pilot while Baron Von Huenefeldt will be passenger. Fritz Loose was never connected with the enterprise. Herr Loose is not flying at all."

Despite the statement of Mrs. Koehl, Julius Koehl, head of the Junkers Works, said he understood that Loose would be the relief pilot.

POSTMASTER KILLS BROTHER'S FIANCEE

WALLKILL, N. Y., March 28.—A poster concerning the countryside today for Harry T. McHugh, 31, suspected of shooting his brother's fiancée here yesterday.

The girl, Marie Terwilliger, nineteen-year-old telephone operator, was shot in front of her home here following a quarrel with McHugh, according to police. She staggered across the street and fell dead.

McHugh is the postmaster of the village. Miss Margaret Goldsmith, a friend of the slain girl, told police that McHugh had accused Miss Terwilliger and his brother of "loose conduct." The quarrel followed, she said.

JURORS SEATED IN TRIAL OF CONVICT

Charging misrepresentation was made to them when they purchased a lot in Fairfield, E. Horace Platter and Annabelle D. Platter have brought suit in Common Pleas Court against Della Kogler, Charles Kogler and Phoebe Kogler.

Plaintiffs assert they bought the lot from Della and Charles Kogler February 1, 1927 and received a deed for the property, but found upon making a recent survey, that the defendant, Phoebe Kogler, is attempting to occupy fourteen feet and eight inches of the west end of the lot, claiming rightful ownership.

At the time of the conveyance, the defendants had knowledge of the claims of Phoebe Kogler but fraudulently represented to the plaintiffs that they owned it all, the petition alleges.

Plaintiffs explain they planned to construct a business building on the lot but are unable to use the property for the purpose originally intended because of the pretended claims of Phoebe Kogler. Plaintiffs ask the court to quiet their title to the property and to award them damages and attorney fees against Della and Charles Kogler, Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

ALLEGED BALANCE UNPAID

Suit for $375.35, alleged balance due on an oral contract under which labor and materials were furnished for the construction of certain improvements on real estate owned by the defendants, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by R. M. Denney against George D. and Lena Decker.

Foreclosure of property upon which The Peoples Building and Savings Co., Xenia, named co-defendant, claims to hold a lien, is asked.

Plaintiff charges the contract with George Decker, existed between May 9 and December 5, 1927 and that of the original amount due $443 was paid.

Plaintiff obtained a mechanics lien on real estate owned by the defendants January 30, 1928 for the amount remaining due but the savings company claims to hold an interest by mortgage on the premises, the petition recites. Attorney Harry D. Smith represents the plaintiff.

What Doctors Think of the Laxative Habit

What do YOU do when the bowels need a little assistance? If you clear up the condition with some laxative made with CASCARA, there is nothing better for the system—for the blood.

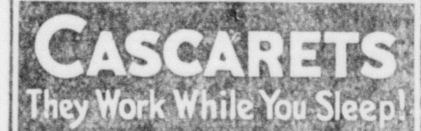

But if you don't know the laxative you have learned to depend on is of harmless cascara, here's some truly valuable advice:

The bark of a tree called cascara is the most marvelous conditioner man-kind has yet found. It stimulates the bowel's muscular action, but does NOT weaken. A violent laxative forms the laxative HABIT. You always need more on the morrow. With cascara, you don't. Its gentle influence carries on sometimes for days. With less and less need of any aid, as time goes on.

So, the very next time you feel sluggish, take only a candy cascaret. Delightful to the taste, sweet and acceptable to any stomach, and just as efficient as the powerful purgatives that fairly paralyze the peristaltic walls of one's intestines. The only habit you'll get from cascarets is the one of going weeks and months without ANY help of the kind. And when you do invoke their aid again, the same small dose suffices. Any doctor can tell you about cascara; and any druggist has the candy cascarets. —Adv.

Handicapped at school by listless mornings!

School authorities reveal need for more nourishing breakfasts

It is not surprising that school authorities are now putting such emphasis on the kind of breakfast children eat.

A widespread study of school work shows that 70 to 80% of the important subjects are set for the after-breakfast period, with the idea of capitalizing the child's most energetic hours.

But too often children are dull—listless—inattentive—just at this important time; because they have come to school without a proper breakfast.

Hot whole grain cereal and milk is considered the ideal breakfast for growing children—its importance being urged by dietitians, nutrition workers, government bulletins, and other authorities too numerous to mention.

And of all the cereals, oatmeal is declared to be the best; the most nourishing, the best balanced, the richest in growth materials. No other provides so much protein—and protein is the element which builds tissues and which therefore must be abundantly supplied all during the growth years.

In Mother's Oats the tender bran is retained, too—and vitamins and minerals which many cereals lack.

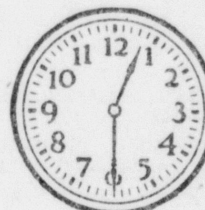

Give your children the benefit of this richly nourishing breakfast, regularly. Two kinds, Mother's Oats as you have always known it and the new quick-cooking kind (same luscious flavor)—which cooks faster than toast.

Handicapped at school by listless mornings!

School authorities reveal need for more nourishing breakfasts

It is not surprising that school authorities are now putting such emphasis on the kind of breakfast children eat.

A widespread study of school work shows that 70 to 80% of the important subjects are set for the after-breakfast period, with the idea of capitalizing the child's most energetic hours.

But too often children are dull—listless—inattentive—just at this important time; because they have come to school without a proper breakfast.

Hot whole grain cereal and milk is considered the ideal breakfast for growing children—its importance being urged by dietitians, nutrition workers, government bulletins, and other authorities too numerous to mention.

And of all the cereals, oatmeal is declared to be the best; the most nourishing, the best balanced, the richest in growth materials. No other provides so much protein—and protein is the element which builds tissues and which therefore must be abundantly supplied all during the growth years.

In Mother's Oats the tender bran is retained, too—and vitamins and minerals which many cereals lack.

Give your children the benefit of this richly nourishing breakfast, regularly. Two kinds, Mother's Oats as you have always known it and the new quick-cooking kind (same luscious flavor)—which cooks faster than toast.

"Fathers can learn from their sons not to gossip, not to be too strenuous in their activities, among other things," he declared.

"Sons can learn from their fathers how to be successful in one job, to give their service to the community and all worthy causes and to love one woman and home."

The banquet was served by the Ladies Aid Society of the church. Harvey Elam was chairman of the dinner program and the Rev. W. N. Shank gave the address of welcome for the fathers. Kenneth Fulkerson represented the sons in his address of welcome.

Music was furnished by the male quartet of the church, composed of Karl R. Babb, W. E. Currie, Roy Spahr and Bayless Thompson.

REPORT ON HAITI ANSWER TO KING

WASHINGTON, March 28.—"The American intervention in Haiti will form a brilliant page in history of which every American should be proud."

This challenging statement from the annual report of John H. Russell, American high commissioner to Haiti, threw down the gauge of battle today to Senator William H. King, (D) Utah, whose criticism of the Haitian government following his exclusion from that country last April, has remained here-tofore unanswered.

Russell's report to Secretary of State Kellogg declares that the work of re-establishing Haiti on a sound economic and political basis is progressing at an almost unbelievable pace.

"The prosperity and happiness of the Haitian people have already been materially advanced."

No reference is made in the report to the King episode.

Block and Johnson are said to have kept company with Hazel Mayer, 29, a white woman who formerly resided at Parkersburg. The same verdict acquitted the woman.

Johnson was shot in a city park while the three are said to have been riding in Block's auto.

Block's wife sat at his side throughout the trial and broke down when the verdict was announced.

PAIR ARRESTED MAY FACE CHARGES AFTER AUTO STRIKES BUS

Ernest Rogers, 46, and Arnett Eckle, 35, both of Washington C. H., are being held at Police Headquarters pending investigation of a report their auto side-swiped a Washington-bound, Washington C. H.-Xenia bus on the Jamestown C. H.-Xenia Pike, five miles west of Jamestown, early Tuesday night.

Police are holding Rogers, alleged driver and owner of the car, on a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated. He pleaded not guilty before Mayor John W. Pring Wednesday morning and is being held in default of $500 bond. No charge has been lodged against Eckle, who is being held on suspicion.

After side-swiping the bus, the pair is alleged to have continued in a sedan toward Xenia on their way to Dayton. The bus was turned around and reached Xenia ahead of the sedan, which was stopped on the road when the bus driver passed, he reported.

The bus driver in passing, noted the license number of the sedan and also noticed the car had only one headlight. He drove to Police Headquarters.

Patrolmen Charles Thompson and J. E. Craig arrested the pair at the edge of the city. No liquor was found but a sack of corns was discovered.

A fender was torn off the bus in the accident. The sedan was not damaged.

Police say the bus line obtained an attachment on the sedan Wednesday.

APPELLATE COURT HEARS FOUR CASES

The Greene County Court of Appeals, Second Appellate District, which convened in Common Pleas Court Tuesday to consider six cases appealed on error from lower court decisions, took four cases under advisement at the conclusion of the day's session, during which attorneys arguments, pro and con, were heard.

Of the remaining two cases, one will be heard at Dayton and one at Washington C. H. at a later date, it was decided.

Decisions on the four cases heard are expected to be announced in several weeks.

MRS. DICE RECEIVES JUNIOR CLUB TUESDAY

An appropriate title for the early days of spring was "The Rise of the Nature Lover in Literature," presented by Mrs. A. V. Perrill to the Junior Women's Club, when the society was entertained at the home of Mrs. Mary Little Dice, N. King St., Tuesday afternoon.

"The Ethic Vision of Margaret Deland" was the subject well handled by Mrs. Dice. The papers held the interest of the club members and were well presented.

Optometrists from Montgomery, Greene, Clark, Miami, Darke, Preble and Champaign Counties will meet at the Gray Manor in Dayton Wednesday evening. Plans for the coming state convention will be discussed and arrangements have been made for an entertainment for the wives of the optometrists who attend the meeting. E. O. Sterzer of Dayton is president of the state association and S. C. Philbrook of Piqua, zone governor.

Mr. George Oldham, this city, returned home Tuesday from Florida where he has been spending three months at Daytona and Miami. He was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Frank Oldham, Pendleton, Ind. They made the trip by motor.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Babb, Paintersville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Karl Babb and family, Waynesville.

Mrs. Elizabeth F. Hanley, 257 N. King St., has returned home after spending the winter months in Cincinnati, O., with her aunt and cousin, Mrs. Wilkins and Mrs. Effie Gildehaus.

Mrs. William E. Gilmore, Wilbur Wright field and her sister, Mrs. Mary Borden, Dayton, who is her guest, have been spending several days in Cleveland and returned home Wednesday.

Mrs. Ambrose Compton, W. Main St., is recovering from injuries to her ankle and shoulder, received when she missed her footing and fell from the rear porch at her home, Tuesday.

Surprised!

Artists say there's not a prettier profile in Manhattan, but ordinary people compliment her more often on her wonderful mass of soft, gleaming brown hair. She's Ada Adams, lovely New York City girl who lives at 130 East 57th Street. "I was certainly surprised," says Mrs. Adams, "to see how easy it is to keep my hair soft, shining and easily manageable by the new method so many of my girl friends are using. I don't have to shampoo mine more than once a month now. Danderine keeps it so clean. It makes my scalp feel just wonderful and I never have a sign of dandruff any more. And Danderine is so simple to use. All you do is put a little on your brush each time you fix your hair." Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair and restores its natural color and lustre. It keeps hopped hair in place without showing. It stops dandruff. It isn't sticky or oily. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles. —Adv.

TWO HUNDRED ENJOY DINNER OF FATHERS AND SONS AT CHURCH

Two hundred fathers and sons of the First M. E. Church, joined in fellowship in enjoying a banquet served in the social rooms of the church, Tuesday night.

Prof. J. D. Slutz, Dayton, was the speaker of the evening, and took as his subject, "It Takes Two To Learn." He pointed out the valuable things that fathers can learn from their sons and vice versa.

"Fathers can learn from their sons not to gossip, not to be too strenuous in their activities, among other things," he declared.

"Sons can learn from their fathers how to be successful in one job, to give their service to the community and all worthy causes and to love home and home."

The banquet was served by the Ladies Aid Society of the church. Harvey Elam was chairman of the dinner program and the Rev. W. N. Shank gave the address of welcome for the fathers. Kenneth Fulkerson represented the sons in his address of welcome.

Music was furnished by the male quartet of the church, composed of Karl R. Babb, W. E. Currie, Roy Spahr and Bayless Thompson.

REPORT ON HAITI ANSWER TO KING

WASHINGTON, March 28. — "The American intervention in Haiti will be a brilliant page in the history of which every American should be proud."

This challenging statement from the annual report of John H. Russell, American high commissioner to Haiti, threw down the gauge of battle today to Senator William H. King, (D) Utah, whose criticism of the Haitian government following its exclusion from that country last April, has remained heretofore unanswered.

Russell's report to Secretary of State Kellogg declares that the work of re-establishing Haiti on a sound economic and political basis is progressing at an almost unbelievable pace.

"The prosperity and happiness of the Haitian people have already been materially advanced."

No reference is made in the report to the King episode.

Johnson was shot in a city park while the three were said to have been riding in Block's auto.

Block's wife sat at his side throughout the trial, and broke down when the verdict was announced.

PAIR ARRESTED MAY FACE CHARGES AFTER AUTO STRIKES BUS

Ernest Rogers, 46, and Arnett Eckle, 35, both of Washington C. H., are being held at Police Headquarters pending investigation of a report their auto side-swiped a Washington-bound, Washington C. H.-Xenia bus on the Jamestown and Xenia pike, five miles west of Jamestown, early Tuesday night.

Police are holding Rogers, alleged driver and owner of the car, on a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated. He pleaded not guilty before Mayor John W. Prugh Wednesday morning and is being held in default of $500 bond. No charge has been lodged against Eckle, who is being held on suspicion.

After side-swiping the bus, the pair is alleged to have continued in a sedan toward Xenia on their way to Dayton. The bus was turned around and reached Xenia ahead of the sedan, which was stopped on the road when the bus driver passed, he reported.

The bus driver in passing, noted the license number of the sedan and also noticed the car had only one headlight. He drove to Police Headquarters.

Patrolmen Charles Thompson and J. E. Craig arrested the pair at the edge of the city. No liquor was found but a sack of corks was discovered.

A fender was torn off the bus in the accident. The sedan was not damaged.

Police say the bus line obtained an attachment on the sedan Wednesday.

APPELLATE COURT HEARS FOUR CASES

The Greene County Court of Appeals, Second Appellate District, which convened in Common Pleas Court Tuesday to consider six cases appealed on error from lower court decisions, took four cases under advisement at the conclusion of the day's session, during which attorney arguments, pro and con, were heard.

Of the remaining two cases, one will be heard at Dayton and one at Washington C. H. at a later date, it was decided.

Decisions on the four cases heard are expected to be announced in several weeks.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

BE NOT CONCEITED—Be not wise in thine own eyes: fear the Lord, and depart from evil.—Prov. 3:7.

RADIO UNIVERSITY AN EXPERIMENT

A test to determine how far radio broadcasting can be used for the higher types of education, is being made by Station WJOL of Newark, N. J. Dr. Horne of the New York university is giving a course of 14 lectures on "Everyman's Philosophy" over that station, and those who take the course will be expected to register and to perform the work assigned by the lecturer. Those attaining the highest marks of the course will be awarded by the owners of the station.

It can well be hoped that this experiment will be a success, for many ambitious people who lack opportunities for education will be able to take advantage of such courses and get some work into them.

If the experiment works out well, it should lead to many other things. It is possible that the time will come, when all over the country people can get the main essentials of a college education over the radio.

REASON FOR 13 MONTHS IN YEAR

Dr. Cotsworth, the originator of a new perpetual calendar, advocates the adoption of an international fixed calendar of 13 months of 28 days each, with the remaining day or days set apart as holidays and not given week-day names. One could be called "Year Day" and the other "Leap Day." The one and sometimes two extra days would be considered as additional days and could be added either at the beginning or the middle of the year.

The extra month introduced by this change, it is suggested, could be called Sol, Liberty or Mid-year, and should be the seventh month for the season that this position causes the least displacement of familiar dates.

All months would be the same forever, the first coming on Sunday and the last on Saturday. The superstitious would be encouraged to give up some of their worries, for upon examination of the calendar they would find that every month contains a Friday the 13th.

The unequal length of our present months is a source of confusion and uncertainty in economic circles in the arrangement of all statistics and accounts. Due to the variation in the month, which may contain 28, 29, 30 or 31 days, all calculations of salaries, interest, insurance, pensions, rent and leases which are fixed on a monthly, quarterly, or one-half yearly basis, are inaccurate.

Within the last year the Cotsworth Calendar has been presented to legislative, business and labor leaders of more than a score of nations. The League of Nations, the International Chamber of Commerce, and many religious organizations have committees considering its feasibility. So far everyone has found it not only desirable but practical, even in the case of religious holidays.

It is proposed that the calendar be universally changed on January 1, 1933, because that year, month, week and day, all begin together. 1933 comes in on Sunday and ends on Sunday. This is a logical and convenient time for this desired change.

The New Perpetual Calendar must be brought about in some in some international way. Civilization must act to correct an inaccurate and inefficient calendar.

EDUCATION

Ethel Mann and Marian Mann, two Colorado girls, went to New York to get a chance on the stage. They were told there were 300,000 girls with talent waiting to be placed. But these girls had unusual talent, they were persistent and they made good. After having filled engagements successfully they return to the University of Colorado to complete their courses. And here is the point. These girls found their greatest possession was their education. They were college girls. So impressed were they, on Broadway, with the value of education, that they return to finish their courses. The reign of Dumb Dora is about over.

WATER AND PUBLICITY

Looking out on the great stretches of western desert one is sure that millions of acres of our country need but two things; water and advertising. Those two things, as Forbes says, have made California. Water and advertising would make this country capable of supporting most of the population of the globe.

COMMUNISM IS OVER

The idea of the world revolution in Russia is done for. The exile of Leon Trotsky serves notice to the world that Russia is through with its idea of government purely by the masses. Russia swings gradually into line with the other nations of the world. The government will be run by those capable of running it—at the top. Now that Lenin is dead and Trotsky gone, Stalin is the strong man in Russia. His idea is a republic. Nothing alarming about that. It's getting back to the old accepted system of earth in Russia—the system of earth in Russia—the system of the rich and the poor. The scare is about over.

A PRACTICAL MAN

There comes a time in the history of the making of every government when a very practical man is needed at the wheel. Stalin is a practical man. Idealists have their important parts to play. They must always come first. Whether they are good or bad idealists they always have power. Lenin and Trotsky in Russia were idealists—not always good. Stalin, now in the saddle over there, thinks it is suicide to crusade against the governments and financial powers of other nations. He is through with the idea of revolution. He is practical.

NEWS COMMENT AND VIEWS

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

—By—

BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, March 28. — A few weeks ago a group of citizens in Stroudsburg, Pa., organized a party to come to New York, see the sights and return, at a total cost of $11.50 per person. And now, recently, New York was included in a budget itinerary of a group of students from Columbia, Missouri. The papers carried accounts of the things seen in New York and the costs.

For the benefit of individuals who wish to take in the sights of New York on a small expenditure, I make the following suggestions: Rooms as well-appointed as those in the spiffiest hotels may be had in the Times Square district, without private bath but with private washroom, with plenty of hot and cold water, soap and towels, and with shower and bath on the same floor, for $10.00. Inquire at the bureau of the Travelers' Aid Society in the railroad stations for the names of these hotels and, if possible, make reservations through the society for a room at that price or slightly higher.

Don't fall for the ancient gag of the room clerk: "Sorry, but we have nothing left except a suite for $8 a day. Take that for tonight and perhaps I can get a single room for you tomorrow." Don't register; go elsewhere. There are plenty of hotels with good rooms at a lower price.

For short distances take the 20-10 cent cabs. For longer distances take the 15-5 cabs. You save money that way, curiously enough. But take the Fifth avenue bus wherever you can.

If you are going to be in town only from morning until midnight, go to one of the ten-cent washrooms of the Grand Central or the Pennsylvania station and clean up there. In a large, well-lighted, private and sanitary room. Then check your grip at the station and be baggage-free to wander as you wish.

Take a Fifth avenue bus that is numbered from 1 to 5, and ride to Fort George, returning on the same bus. The bus traverses Fifth avenue, Riverside drive and goes past Grant's tomb. The fare is 10 cents, each way.

Take a subway to Park Place and walk over to the World Trade Building. Go up into the tower. The cost is 50 cents. It is one of the most magnificent views in the world.

Go to the Battery and take a Staten Island ferry, to the Island and return without getting off the boat. This gives a magnificent view of the harbor and skyline—the same view enjoyed by passengers on incoming ocean liners.

Walk up Park avenue behind the Grand Central station, and see the new addition to the station, which spans the avenue, with three gigantic arches for traffic. It is an impressive sight and will give you an idea what the metropolis of the future will be like.

Eat in any middle-class restaurant and tip the waiter a percent of the amount of the check.

Take the bus up Fifth avenue to the Metropolitan museum and dash about in there for a bit. Even on the run you can see some things that will remain in your memory. Or else take a street car up Central Park west to the Museum of Natural History and race among the bones of dinosaurs and other remains of pre-historic times.

At night, after seven, walk from Times Square up Broadway to Columbus Circle, leisurely, taking in all the garish sights and sounds of that celebrated avenue. Drop in, if you will, at one of the "cathedrals of the motion picture," not to see the picture on view, but to see the appointments of these places.

If you must go to a show, go to a show recommended by the Evening Post's table of Shows or Variety. If the show is a hit and tickets are not obtainable at the box office during the day, wait until ten minutes after eight and again apply. By that time, scalpers have returned unsold tickets and you can buy them, if there are any left, at the box office price.

If you must go to a night club, pick one from Variety's list which appeals to you. Note the cover charge. Go in just about midnight, in time to see the midnight show. Order a bottle of gingerale so the waiter won't stand in front of you all the time shutting off your view. As soon as the show is over call for your check. Tip 10 per cent. You may get a dirty look, and maybe overhear some nasty remark directed at you. But what do you care? You won't ever go to the place again. And they can't arrest you for not being a sucker.

Meanwhile, you should have seen during the course of the day: Madison Square and its adjoining Metropolitan Life tower, and the new dwarfed Flatiron building, Washington Square, the Post Tower, the American Radiator building, the Park Towers, most of the hotels, the skyline by day and Broadway by night, the view of the Palisades from Riverside drive, Central park, Wall street, Fifth avenue, and about all there is of real interest.

If you miss Chinatown or Greenwich Village, you haven't missed much. What you could see anyway in so short a time would be sights aimed at the sucker trade. Don't make a special trip to see Grant's tomb, it looks just as awful as it looks on a postcard.

Don't employ a guide. Don't tell a taxi driver to take you to a night club or speakeasy. Don't buy tickets from street corner merchants. Don't buy articles of from seedy looking fellows who accost you furtively on the street. Count your change and don't over-tip.

How to Achieve Beauty

WHAT YOUR MEASUREMENTS SHOULD BE

I told you, recently, about the standard average proportions of height. Today I shall talk about the variations of type, and these, as I have already mentioned, must be taken into serious consideration before you decide just where you need another inch to complete a perfect picture.

Before I tabulate, I want to tell you that I am not in favor of a slenderized population. Quite the contrary. I believe if we all conformed to standard measurements we should sacrifice a deplorable amount of charm, personality and individuality. Nature didn't intend the feminine world to blossom into the replica of a telegraph pole. Witness the fact that even the most ardent "eat and grow thin" enthusiasts admit a few extra pounds every five years past twenty-five. Maturity smooths and rounds the figure and babies, I know, have very little enthusiasm for a painfully thin mother. Angles aren't at all comfortable to "His littlest majesty." There are girls and women who were absolutely born to be plump.

It takes "balance," commonsense, to know your own needs. Standards are good for comparison. If your body is heavy and lagging, if your movements are weighted, and walking is a task and running an impossibility, the chances are that you are carrying around an extra 20 pounds that are burdening. By all means take them off!

On the other hand, if your shoulder blades, your knees, your elbows and your neck bones are painfully in evidence, make it your task to add at least 10 pounds before another two, months have passed. Angularity is anything but beautiful. I hope that these standards of mine will help you to bring yourself "up" or "down" to ideal proportions.

First, the Venus de Milo presents the classical conception of perfect measurement:

Neck, 14 -5; bust, 34; waist, 31 -5; hips, 40 -5; thigh, 19½; calf, 13½; ankle, 8½; height, 5 feet 6 inches.

The perfect modern figure, as decided by physiologists and artists, is:

Neck, 12½; bust, 36, 37 or 38; waist, 26 to 26½; hips, 40; thigh, 23; calf, 13; ankle, 7½; height, 5 feet 5 inches.

Glycerine Solution for Winter Itch and Chills

M. writes that she is thoroughly relieved of winter itch by rubbing on her skin a mixture of one-third glycerine and two-thirds water. K. finds that it relieved her chills.

Thanks for your contributions, M. and R.

Glycerine, if it is diluted sufficiently with rose or plain water, is a most efficient skin softener and protector against chaps and dryness. So it is reasonable to believe that it will help in winter itch, which is due in some cases to dryness of the skin. Some people have to dilute it still more for it to be effective.

Some Questions and Answers

1. The only value of yeast in the diet is that it is very high in vitamin B, the anti-neuritic vitamin. But it is without doubt much more logical to get your vitamins in the bulkier foods which also contain other food values. Tomatoes in any form (raw, canned or dried), are very rich in vitamin B as well as A, the growth vitamin, and in C, the anti-scorbutic vitamin. Cabbage, especially fresh, is rich in vitamin B and C. Spinach is very rich in vitamins A and B. These three vegetables are the aristocrats of the vegetable kingdom. (Tomatoes are really a fruit). Greens, onions, parsnips, peas, milk, liver, kidneys, citrus fruits and nuts are all high in vitamin B, as well as some of the others. So you see, you have a long list of foods to choose from.

The yeast extracts which are put up under various trade names are also very high in vitamin B, and these make delicious flavorings for soups and sauces. And what will interest those who are reducing, they are so low in calories you can ignore 'em.

2. Will mineral oil used in mayonaisse and French dressing furnish sufficient fat for the diet? Mineral oil doesn't furnish any fat, Mrs. M., because it is a mineral fat and is not absorbed by the system. If taken in other than very moderate amounts, it may, however, absorb the vitamins in foods; thus you might be leeched of your vitamins. It is only recently that some work has been done which shows this possibility. Those who are constantly taking large amounts for constipation should think of this.

3. Yes, olive oil is a good food fat. It is devoid of mineral elements and vitamins, but it is a pure power or heat producer. (It will not cause gallstones to be dissolved, as is commonly thought).

4. All breads made from the grains leave an acid ash, just the same as does white bread.

We have an article on the Balanced Diet and one on Constipation which are helpful. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in coin for each of these.

Nightmares

"About three times a week my wife awakens me, telling me that I talk, rave and even get up and roam around our apartment, talking all the while. Is there a remedy for this? Should I consult my doctor?"

"P." Yes, you should consult your doctor. P. Nightmares may be due to some easily remedied physical disorder, if your family doctor doesn't help you, you should consult a doctor who specializes in psychoanalysis. You may be raving in your sleep because you are not raving in the daytime and have to have some self-expression, or because you have some buried worry which talking over with your physician might relieve.

Have you found the nightmares have any relation to overeating at your evening meal or before going to bed?

HOW STORES OUTGUESS CUSTOMERS

The old-fashioned way of selling things was for a storekeeper to lay in a supply of whatever he thought his customers would want, or ought to have. Sometimes he bought too much, and frequently he did not buy enough. Everything was left to chance, or to haphazard guesswork. Today a good retailer proceeds more scientifically. By using the law of averages he aims to know in advance exactly what his customers are most likely to want, and provides just that. He knows more about the average customer's needs and preferences than the average customer does himself.

Consider, for example, perfumery. There are all kinds and grades of perfumery, from the very mild to the extremely smelly kind and it is used by all types of women. One way to sell perfumery would be to pick at random a variety of grades, and trust to luck to hit on an assortment that would sell evenly. Obviously it would be a large disadvantage to have a large surplus of one kind but not enough of another. A large chain of drug store corporations determined to find out exactly what kind of perfumery women like.

By offering free samples and talking to the women who accepted them, they ascertained the preference of several thousand women. Among other things, they learned that one woman out of every ten does not like perfume at all. One-fourth of all women customers at the perfume counter desire a strong, aromatic variety; but two-thirds of the women want an odor that is extremely mild and delicate. These specifications, of course, are not sharply drawn; of those who desire a pungent odor, not all like the same strength. But in a general way the proportions mentioned above represent the demand. Moreover these proportions were practically the same whether the women were on Broadway or in Iowa.

Similarly, this drug store concern found out what kind of candy people like best—how much more popular is chocolate with nuts in it than caramels. They know that chocolate syrup is the flavor most sought at the soda fountain; but they go further and try to learn exactly what particular kind of chocolate flavor will give the most satisfaction. Also, they seek to know not only that people like a certain thing, but why they like it.

Referring again to perfumery, for purposes of illustration, they saw that the odor of the rose is much more popular than that of lilies or lilac. And the reason is that one tends to be buoyant while the other is heavy and depressing. A blended perfume is more popular than any one particular odor—because a person tires of too definite an odor, just as one tires of too decided a pattern in clothes. A plain blue serge will sell better in the long run than a black and white plaid. The subtle, intangible thing in perfume is best because it carries with it some thing of elusiveness and mystery. The average woman does not like to be identified by her fragrance the moment she enters a drawing room. And so I am assured, no husband wishes to have his wife use perfume of too decided an aroma, no matter how well he might like it at first.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, March 28. — Senator James E. Watson of Indiana doesn't mean to say that he's the only Republican available for the "G. O. P." presidential nomination.

He means, however, to say that he is a Republican.

He could — thought of course he wouldn't — point to another individual, often mentioned as a "G. O. P." possibility, whose politics he thinks might be successfully challenged perhaps by Democrats, too, but certainly by Republicans.

As between himself (Jim Watson) and this unnamed rival aspirant — concerning whose identity he must be more explicit than to say that he's a mining engineer, has lived much abroad, and now holds a portfolio in President Coolidge's cabinet — Jim feels sure that the Kansas City convention will choose him (the senior Hoosier senator) provided it considers that the nomination should go to a REPUBLICAN. If the delegates want to go outside the party that's different.

That the list of Kansas City hopefuls includes several Republicans as good as he is (as Republicans) the senator concedes readily. Yet there is another one among them who has served the organization quite as long, as faithfully, as self-sacrificingly and as efficiently as he has — he WONDERS. So doesn't he deserve some recognition?

Besides, look what a cracker-jack campaign he'd make! And subsequently — what a president!

All that Jim claims for himself as a Republican — a strict "party man" — he can verify and then some.

He's been a regular of regulars — always.

He made sacrifices, too. For one thing, he has submerged himself in the organization. Senator Watson has plenty of ability. He's a strong man and a bold one. He's an exceptional orator.

He might have made himself much more conspicuous than he has, in the senate. Not that he's obscure, as it is, but he has somewhat neglected his own opportunities to work the harder for his party.

He has taken political chances, on his own account, in his party's interest.

If devotion to party's a virtue, Jim's as virtuous as they make 'em.

Jim arrived in the senate in 1916, and has been as busy there as he was among the representatives.

He's a mighty smooth diplomat and an all-round capable executive, which is why he happens to be assistant to the Republican floor manager, Senator Curtis — party service again.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

GENERALITIES

General statements are dangerous. I am inclined to think. One of mine hurt two innocent souls and the following letter apprises me of the fact:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I want to call your attention to the Living and Loving column these called 'Loves Married Man.' You said that no honorable man who is married would make love to a girl. You might be right in some cases, but not in all. I have a girl whom I dearly love, and hope some day to marry. She also reads these articles, and called my attention to this one. It made her feel badly and me, too, at the time, but we still love each other.

"I am a married man and am getting a divorce, but I never knew what real love was until I met her. I was married when I was 17, but only went with the girl two weeks before we were married. Her uncle and aunt talked me into it, and I was too young and foolish to say no. I was not even working but they told me not to worry about that, as I could stay there as long as I wanted to. They even furnished the money to get married with.

"She was of the flapper type and did not want to settle down. She was a year older than I. We were married just four months when I got hold of a letter from a fellow. She had been writing him before, for he spoke of other letters, and told her to leave me and he would pay for her divorce. She left me about three months after that. She came back and stayed two weeks and two days and left again. I took her back after that and tried to get her to do what was right. She left me about seven times. I always took her back, because I was trying to make the best of my bargain. I had long lost what love I had for her. We had one child. She left him shortly after he was born. My mother is keeping him.

"Mrs. Lee, do you think I am wrong in going with this girl now? Do you see any reason why I cannot make this girl happy and be happy myself? I am old enough now to know whom I love and to want a home of my own. Do you think I am not honorable by going with this girl? I told her I was married when I started going with her. I told her I was getting a divorce. She said she would wait if it took ten years.

"A Reader." You cannot for a moment think I meant to call a man dishonest under such circumstances as you describe, Reader. The man I was writing about did not tell the girl he was married and had no intention of getting a divorce until he was married. In fact, he made love to more than one girl, just to amuse himself. I sincerely hope you will get your divorce and marry the girl you love and that you both will be very happy.

"Old Fashioned" declares she liked "Won't Pet's" letter, printed in this column some time ago, and would like to make her acquaintance. She doesn't like to pet either, and was told by one young man that she would never have a beau on this account. Sorry I cannot give you "Won't Pet's" address, but glad you share her views.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

AN INDIGNATION MEETING

It didn't take long for Peter to discover that between them, he and the little Yellow Bird, had started something. The birds were holding a regular indignation meeting, each one assuring the other what could or couldn't be done to mend matters and to punish Cowbird.

At last Mr. and Mrs. Wren could stand it no longer. They had to have a voice in the discussion, and without even saying "excuse us" to the boy, over they flew to join the group about Red Eyes in the neighboring tree.

"Good gracious! What a bedlam these birds are making!" The boy laughed. "I don't suppose Wrens meant to be rude. They forgot all about me, that is all, or else they took it for granted that I would follow them.

"I guess I will take a walk along Bird Row. Down at the end of it I saw a gay young lizard on the other day. I wanted to make friends with him then, but he scooted under a stone. I think I will try it again."

Off from the porch and down the three Peter scrambled. He was rather sorry to leave the Wren apartment, but he didn't suppose when his hosts would return and he didn't feel like wasting more time waiting for them. Besides the din that the birds were making made the boy's ears ache. As Peter passed the group they paid no attention to him, but he heard Johnny Wren remark:

"Well, Vireo, you can say all you like. You are a preacher and one must have respect for your opinions and your kind heart. But I for one think that Cowbird should be driven from Birdland. And I believe if the two-legs all knew what a dreadful creature she was they would help us to do it."

"I'll peek her eyes out if I catch her," screamed Bluebird. "Oh, my beautiful hairlined nest in the rosebush!" moaned gentle Chippy.

"Nonsense! Why cry over a laid egg? Bury it, I say!" declared independent Mrs. Yellowbird.

"Poor thing! Mrs. Cowbird just can't help being mean, she is just made that way!" said kind Preacher Red Eye. Suddenly Johnny Wren began to sing and as each bird tried to make his or her voice heard above his high, clear notes, the result was funny. Peter hurried by.

"Those birds will never come to any understanding, so what is the use of hanging around to listen to them?" thought he.

A lizard grew at the lower end of Bird Row, and it was under a stone near it that the gay lizard made his home. Peter looked about for him on the ground. Then he bent over the edge of the stone and cried in a low voice:

"JOHNNY WREN! STOP THAT SINGING AND LISTEN TO ME, MISS PHOEBE BIRD IS HOME AGAIN."

"Do come out, Mr. Lizard, and play with me! I have seen you so often, and yet we have never really met. I am Two-Legs, who lives in the house by the edge of the garden, you know."

There was not a sound in reply. Nor did Mr. Lizard appear. Peter tried again.

"That is a lovely coat you wear! Come out, and let me look at it again, please do," coaxed he.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

BE NOT CONCEITED—Be not wise in thine own eyes: fear the Lord, and depart from evil.—Prov. 3:7.

RADIO UNIVERSITY AN EXPERIMENT

A test to determine how far radio broadcasting can be used for the higher types of education, is being made by Station WGR of Newark, N. J. Dr. Horne of the New York University is giving a course of 14 lectures on "Everyman's Philosophy" over that station, and those who take the course will be expected to register and to perform the work assigned by the lecturer. Those obtaining the highest marks of the course will be rewarded by the owners of the station.

It can well be hoped that this experiment will be a success, as it will enable many people who lack opportunities for education to be able to take advantage of such courses and get some work into them.

If the experiment works out well, it should lead to many other similar experiments, and it is possible that the time will come, when all over the country people can get the main essentials of a college education over the radio.

REASON FOR 13 MONTHS IN YEAR

Dr. Cotsworth, the originator of a new perpetual calendar, advocates the adoption of an international fixed calendar of 13 months of 28 days each, with the remaining day or days set apart as holidays and not given week-day names. One could be called "Year Day" and the other "Leap Day." The one and sometimes two extra days would be considered as additional days and could be added either at the beginning or the middle of the year.

The extra month introduced by this change, it is suggested, could be called Sol, Liberty or Mid-year, and should be the seventh month for the season that this position causes the least displacement of familiar dates.

All months would be the same forever, the first coming on Sunday and the last on Saturday. The superstitious would be encouraged to give up some of their worries, for upon examination of the calendar they would find that every month contains a Friday the 13th.

The unequal length of our present months is a source of confusion and uncertainty in economic circles in the arrangement of all statistics and accounts. Due to the variation in the month, which may contain 28, 29, 30 or 31 days, all calculations of salaries, interest, insurance, pensions, rent and leases which are fixed on a monthly, quarterly, or one-half yearly basis, are inaccurate.

Within the last year the Cotsworth Calendar has been presented to legislative, business and labor leaders of more than a score of nations. The League of Nations, the International Chamber of Commerce, and many religious organizations have committees considering its feasibility. So far everyone has found it not only desirable but practical, even in the case of religious holidays.

It is proposed that the calendar be universally changed on January 1, 1933, because that year, month, week and day, all begin together. 1933 comes in on Sunday and ends on Sunday. This is a logical and convenient time for this desired change.

The New Perpetual Calendar must be brought about in some in some international way. Civilization must act to correct an inaccurate and inefficient calendar.

The Way of the World

EDUCATION

Ethel Mann and Marian Mann, two Colorado girls, went to New York to get a chance on the stage. They were told there were 300, 300 girls with talent waiting to be placed. But these girls had unusual talent, they were persistent and they made good. After having filled engagements successfully they return to the University of Colorado to complete their courses. And here is the point. These girls found their greatest possession was their education. They were college girls. So impressed were they, on Broadway, with the value of education, that they return to finish their courses. The reign of Dumb Dora is about over.

WATER AND PUBLICITY

Looking out on the great stretches of western desert one is sure that millions of acres of our country need but two things; water and advertising. Those two things, as Forbes says, have made California. Water and advertising would make this country capable of supporting most of the population of the globe.

COMMUNISM IS OVER

The idea of the world revolution in Russia is done for. The exile of Leon Trotsky serves notice to the world that Russia is through with its idea of government purely by the masses. Russia swings gradually into line with the other nations of the world. The government will be run by those capable of running it—at the top. Now that Lenin is dead and Trotsky gone, Stalin is the strong man in Russia. His idea is a republic. Nothing alarming about that. It's getting back to the old accepted system of earth in Russia—the system of earth in Russia—the system of the rich and the poor. The scare is about over.

A PRACTICAL MAN

There comes a time in the history of the making of every government when a very practical man is needed at the wheel. Stalin is a practical man. Idealists have their important parts to play. They must always come first. Whether they are good or bad idealists they always have power. Lenin and Trotsky in Russia were idealists—not always good. Stalin, now in the saddle over there, thinks it is suicide to crusade against the governments and financial powers of other nations. He is through with the idea of revolution. He is practical.

NEWS COMMENT AND VIEWS

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

—By—

BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, March 28. — A few weeks ago a group of citizens in Stroudsburg, Pa., organized a party to come to New York, see the sights and return, at a total cost of $11.50 per person. And more recently, New York was included in a budget itinerary of a group of students from Columbia, Missouri. The papers carried accounts of the things seen in New York and the cost.

For the benefit of individuals who wish to take in the sights of New York on a small expenditure, I make the following suggestions: Rooms as well-appointed as those in the snuffiest hotels may be had in the Times Square district, without private bath but with private washroom, with plenty of hot and cold water, soap and towels, and with shower and bath on the same floor, for $5.00. Inquire at the bureau of the Travelers' Aid Society in the railroad stations for the names of these hotels and, if possible, make reservations through the society for a room at that price or slightly higher.

Don't fall for the ancient gag of the room clerk: "Sorry, but we have nothing left except a suite for $8 a day. Take that for tonight and perhaps I can get a single room for you tomorrow." Don't register elsewhere. There are plenty of hotels with good rooms at a lower price.

For short distances take the 20-10 cent cabs. For longer distances take the 15-5 cabs. You save money that way, curiously enough. But take the Fifth Avenue bus wherever you can.

If you are going to be in town only from morning until midnight, go to one of the ten-cent washrooms of the Grand Central or the Pennsylvania station and clean up there, in a large, well-lighted, private and sanitary room. Then check your grip at the station and be baggage-free to wander as you wish.

Take a Fifth Avenue bus that is running from 1 to 5, and ride to Fort George, returning on the same bus. The bus traverses Fifth Avenue, Riverside drive and goes past Grant's tomb. The fare is 10 cents, each way.

Take a subway to Park Place and walk over to the Woolworth building. Go up into the tower. The cost is 50 cents. It is one of the most magnificent views in the world.

Go to the Battery and take a Staten Island ferry, to the island and return without getting off the boat. This gives a magnificent view of the harbor and skyline—the same view enjoyed by passengers on incoming ocean liners.

Walk up Park Avenue behind the Grand Central station, and see the new addition to the station, which spans the avenue, with three gigantic arches for traffic. It is an impressive sight and will give you an idea what the metropolis of the future will be like.

Eat in any middle-class restaurant, and tip the waiter 10 per cent of the amount of the check.

Take the bus up Fifth Avenue to the Metropolitan museum and dash about in there for a bit. Even on the run you can see some things that will remain in your memory. Or else take a street car up Central Park west to the Museum of Natural History and race among the bones of dinosaurs, and other remains of pre-historic times.

At night, after seven, walk from Times Square up Broadway to Columbus Circle, leisurely, taking in all the garish sights and sounds of that celebrated avenue. Drop in, if you will, at one of the "cathedrals of the motion picture," not to see the picture on view, but to see the appointments of these places.

If you must go to a show, go to a show recommended by the Evening Post's table of Shows or Variety. If the show is a hit and tickets are not obtainable at the box office during the day, wait until ten minutes after eight and again apply. By that time, scalpers have returned unsold tickets and you can buy them, if there are any left, at the box office price.

If you must go to a night club, pick one from Variety's list which appeals to you. Note the cover charges. Go in just about midnight, in time to see the skydive show. Order a bottle of gingerale so the waiter won't stand in front of you all the time shouting off your view. As soon as the show is over call for your check. Tip 10 per cent. You may get a dirty look, and maybe overhear some nasty remark directed at you. But what do you care? You won't ever go to the place again. And they can't arrest you for not being a sucker.

Meanwhile, you should have seen during the course of the day: Madison Square and its adjoining Metropolitan Life tower, and the new dwarfed Flatiron building, Washington Square, the Bush Tower building, the American Radiator building, the Park Towers, most of the hotels, the Park Towers, day and Broadway by night, the view of the Palisades from Riverside drive, Central park, Wall Street, Fifth Avenue, and about all there is of real interest.

If you miss Clintown or Greenwich Village, you haven't missed much. What you could see missed in so short a time would be sights aimed at the sucker trade. Don't make a special trip to see Grand Central, it looks just as awful as it looks on a postcard.

Don't employ a guide. Don't tell a taxi driver to take you to a night club or speakeasy. Don't buy tickets from street corner awnings. Don't buy articles of merchandise, rings, furs or watches from seedy looking fellows who accost you furtively on the street. Count your change and don't over-tip.

There are girls and women who were absolutely born to be plump.

It takes "balance," common sense, to know your own needs. Standards are good for comparison. If your body is heavy and lagging, if your movements are weighted, and walking is a task and running an impossibility, the chances are that you are carrying around an extra 20 pounds that are burdening. By all means take them off!

On the other hand, if your shoulder blades, your knees, your elbows and your neck bones are painfully in evidence, make it your task to add at least 10 pounds before another two months have passed. Angularity is anything but beautiful. I hope that these standards of mine will help you to bring yourself "up" or "down" to ideal proportions.

First, the Venus de Milo presents the classical conception of perfect measurement:

Neck, 14-5; bust, 34; waist, 21-5; hips, 40-5; thigh, 19-1/2; calf, 13-1/2; ankle, 8-1/2; height, 5 feet 6 inches.

The perfect modern figure, as decided by physiologists and artists, is:

Neck, 13-1/2; bust, 36, 37 or 38; waist, 24 to 26-1/2; hips, 40; thigh, 23; calf, 13; ankle, 7-1/2; height, 5 feet 5 inches.

Glycerine Solution for Winter Itch and Chills

M. writes that she is thoroughly relieved of winter itch by rubbing on her skin a mixture of one-third glycerine and two-thirds water. R. finds that it relieved her chills.

Thanks for your contributions, M. and R.

Glycerine, if it is diluted sufficiently with rose or plain water, is a most efficient skin softener and protector against chaps and dryness. So it is reasonable to believe that it will help in winter itch, which is due in some cases to dryness of the skin. Some people have to dilute it still more for it to be effective.

Some Questions and Answers

1. The only value of yeast in the diet is that it is very high in vitamin B, the anti-neuritic vitamin. But is without doubt much more logical to get your vitamins in the bulkier foods which also contain other food values. Tomatoes in any form (raw, canned or dried), are very rich in vitamin B as well as A, the growth vitamin, and in C, the anti-scorbutic vitamin. Cabbage, especially fresh, is rich in vitamin B and C. Spinach is very rich in vitamins A and B. These three vegetables are the aristocrats of the vegetable kingdom. (Tomatoes are really a fruit). Greens, onions, parsnips, peas, milk, liver, kidneys, citrus fruits and nuts are all high in vitamin B, as well as in some of the others. So you see, you have a long list of foods to choose from.

The yeast extracts which are put up under various trade names are also very high in vitamin B, and these make delicious flavorings for soups and sauces. And what will interest those who are reducing, they are so low in calories you can ignore 'em.

2. Will mineral oil used in mayonnaise and French dressing furnish sufficient fat for the diet? Mineral oil doesn't furnish any fat, Mrs. M., because it is a mineral fat and is not absorbed by the system. If taken in other than very moderate amounts, it may, however, absorb the vitamins in foods; thus you might be leeching your vitamins. It is only recently that some work has been done which shows this possibility. Those who are constantly taking large amounts for constipation should think of this.

3. Yes, olive oil is a good food fat. It is devoid of mineral elements and vitamins, but it is a pure power or heat producer. (It will not cause gallstones to be dissolved, as is commonly thought).

4. All breads made from the grains leave an acid ash, just the same as does white bread.

We have an article on the Balanced Diet and one on Constipation which are helpful. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and two cents in coin for each of these.

Nightmares

"About once a week my wife awakens me, telling me that I talk, rave and even get up and roam around our apartment, talking all the while. Is there a remedy for this? Should I consult my doctor?"

"P."

Yes, you should consult your doctor, P. Nightmares may be due to some easily remedied physical disorder, and if your family doctor doesn't help you, you should consult a doctor who specializes in psychoanalysis. You may be raving in your sleep because you are not raving in the daytime and have to have some self-expression, or because you have some buried worry which talking over with your physician might relieve. Have you found the nightmares have any relation to overeating at your evening meal or before going to bed?

HOW STORES OUTGUESS CUSTOMERS

The old-fashioned way of selling things was for a storekeeper to lay in a supply of whatever he thought his customers would want, or ought to have. Sometimes he bought too much, and frequently he did not buy enough. Everything was left to chance, or to haphazard guesswork. Today a good retailer proceeds more scientifically. By using the law of averages he aims to know in advance exactly what his customers are most likely to want, and provides just that. He knows more about the average customer's needs and preferences than the average customer does himself.

Consider, for example, perfumery. There are all kinds and grades of perfumery, from the very mild to the extremely smelly kind, and it is used by all types of women. One way to sell perfumery would be to pick at random a variety of grades, and trust to luck to hit on an assortment that would sell evenly. Obviously it would be a big disadvantage to have a large surplus of one kind but not enough of another. A large chain of drug store corporations determined to find out exactly what kind of perfumery women like. By offering free samples and talking to the women who accepted them, they ascertained the preference of several thousand women. Among other things, they learned that one woman out of ten does not like perfume at all. One-fourth of all women customers at the perfume counter desire a strong, aromatic variety; but two-thirds of the women want an odor that is extremely mild and delicate. These specifications, of course, are now sharply drawn up of those who desire a pungent odor, not all like the same strength. But in a general way the proportions mentioned above represent the demand. Moreover these proportions were practically the same whether the women were on Broadway or in Iowa.

Similarly, this drug store concern found out what kind of candy people like best—how much more popular is chocolate with nuts in it than caramels. They know that chocolate syrup is the most popular in the soda fountain; that they go further and try to learn exactly what particular kind of chocolate flavor will give the most satisfaction. Also, they seek to know not only that people like a certain thing, but why they like it.

Referring again to perfumery, for purposes of illustration, they saw that the odor of the rose was much more popular than that of lilies or lilac. And the reason that one tends to be buoyant while the other is heavy and depressing. A blended perfume is more popular than any one particular odor—because a person tires of too definite an odor, just as one tires of too decided a pattern in clothes. A plain blue serge will sell better in the long run than a black and white plaid. The subtle, intangible thing in perfume is best because it carries with it some thing of elusiveness and mystery. The average woman does not like to be identified by her fragrance the moment she enters a drawing room. And so I am assured, no husband wishes to have his wife use perfume of too decided an aroma, no matter how well he might like it at first.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, March 28. — Senator James E. Watson of Indiana doesn't mean to say that he's the only Republican available for the "G. O. P." presidential nomination.

He means, however, to say that he is a Republican.

He could — thought of course he wouldn't — point to another individual, often mentioned as a "G. O. P." possibility, whose politics he thinks might be successfully challenged perhaps by Democrats, too, but certainly by Republicans.

As between himself (Jim Watson) and this unnamed rival aspirant — concerning whose identity he mustn't be more explicit than to say that he's a mining engineer, has lived much abroad, and now holds a portfolio in President Coolidge's cabinet — Jim feels sure that the Kansas City convention will choose him (the senior Hoosier senator) provided it considers that the nomination should go to a REPUBLICAN. If the delegates want to go outside the party that's different.

That the list of Kansas City hopefuls includes several Republicans as good as he is (as Republicans) the senator concedes readily.

Yet is there another one among them who has served the organization as long as, as faithfully, as self-sacrificingly and as efficiently as he has? — he WONERS. So doesn't he deserve some recognition?

Besides, look what a cracker-jack campaign he'd make! And subsequently — what a president!

All that Jim claims for himself as a Republican — a strict "party man" — he can verify and then some.

He's been a regular of regulars — always.

He made sacrifices, too. For one thing, he has submerged himself in the organization. Senator Watson has plenty of ability. He's a strong man and a bold one. He's an exceptional orator.

He might have made himself much more conspicuous than he has, in the senate. Not that it's obscure, as it is, but he has somewhat neglected his own opportunities, to work the harder for his party.

He has taken political chances, on his own account, in his party's interest.

If devotion to party's a virtue, Jim's as virtuous as they make 'em.

Jim arrived in the senate in 1916, and has been as busy there as he was among the representatives.

He's a mighty smooth diplomat and an all-round capable executive, which is why he happens to be assistant to the Republican floor manager, Senator Curtis — party service again.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

GENERALITIES

General statements are dangerous. I am inclined to think. One of mine hurt two innocent souls and the following letter apprises me of the fact:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I want to call your attention to the Living and Loving column that was called 'Loves Married Man.' You said that no honorable man who is married would make love to a girl. You might be right in some cases, but not in all. I have a girl whom I dearly love, and hope some day to marry. She also reads these articles, and called my attention to this one. It made her feel badly and me, too, at the time, but we still love each other.

"I am a married man and am getting a divorce. I never knew what real love was until I met this girl. I was married when I was 17, but only went with the girl two weeks before we were married. Her uncle and aunt talked me into it. I was too young and foolish to say no. I was not even working but they told me not to worry about that, as I could stay there as long as I wanted to. They even furnished the money to get married with.

"She was of the flapper type and did not want to settle down. She was a year older than I. We were married just four months when I got hold of a letter from a fellow. She had been writing him before, for he spoke of other letters, and told her to leave me and he would pay for her divorce. She left me about three months after that. She came back and stayed two weeks and two days and left again. I took her back after that and tried to get her to do what was right. She left me about seven times. I always took her back, because I was trying to make the best of my bargain. I had long lost what love I had for her. We had one child. She left him shortly after he was born. My

"Mrs. Lee, do you think I am wrong in going with this girl now? Do you see any reason why I cannot make this girl happy and be happy myself? I am old enough now to know whom I love and to want a home of my own. Do you think I am not honorable by going with this girl? I told her I was married when I started going with her. I told her I was getting a divorce. She said she would wait if it took ten years.

"A Reader."

You cannot for a moment think I meant to call a man dishonorable under such circumstances as you describe. Her husband was I was writing about did not tell the girl he was married and had no intention of getting a divorce and marrying her. In fact, he made love to more than one girl, just to amuse himself. I sincerely hope you will get your divorce and marry the girl you love and that you both will be very happy.

"Old Fashioned" declares she liked "Won't Pet's" letter, printed in this column some time ago, and would like to make her acquaintance. She doesn't like to pet either, and was told by one young man that she would never have a beau on this account. Sorry I cannot give you "Won't Pet's" address, but glad you share her views.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

AN INDIGNATION MEETING

It didn't take long for Peter to discover that between them, he and the little Yellow Bird, had started something. The birds were holding a regular indignation meeting, each one assuring the other what coult they do to mend matters and to punish Cowbird.

At last Mr. and Mrs. Wren could stand it no longer. They had to have a voice in the discussion, and without even saying "excuse us" to the boy, over they flew to join the group about Red Eyes in the neighboring tree.

"Good gracious! What a bedlam those birds are making!" The boy laughed. "I don't suppose the Wrens meant to be rude. They forgot all about me, that is all, and they took it for granted that I would follow them."

"I guess I will take a walk along Bird Row. Down at the end of it I saw a gay young lizard the other day. I wanted to make friends with him then, but he scouted under a stone. I think I will try it again."

Off from the porch and down the three Peter scrambled. He was rather sorry to leave the Wren apartment, but there was no telling when his Wren would return and he didn't feel like wasting more time waiting for them. Besides the din that the birds were making made the boy's ears ache. As Peter passed the group they paid no attention to him, but he heard Johnny Wren cackle:

"Well, Vireo, you can say all you like. You are a preacher and one must have respect for your opinions and your kind heart. But I for one think that Cowbird should be driven from Birdland. And I believe if the Two-Legs all knew what a dreadful creature she was they would help us to do it."

"I'll peck her eyes out if I catch her," screamed Bluebird.

"Oh, my beautiful hairlined nest in the rosebush!" moaned gentle Chippy.

"Nonsense! Why cry over a laid egg? Bury it, I say!" declared independent Mrs. Yellowbird.

"Poor thing! Mrs. Cowbird just can't help being mean, she is just made that way!" said kind Preacher.

er Red Eye.

Suddenly Johnny Wren began to sing and as each bird tried to make his or her voice heard above his high, clear notes, the result was funny. Peter hurried by.

"Those birds will never come to any understanding, so what is the use of hanging around to listen to them?" thought he.

A cat-briar grew at the lower end of Bird Row, and it was under a stone near it that the gay little lizard made his home. There was no sign of Lizard anywhere. Peter looked about for him on the ground. Then he bent over the edge of the stone and cried in a low voice:

"JOHNNY WREN! STOP THAT SINGING AND LISTEN TO ME, MISS FLORENCE BIRD IS HOME AGAIN."

"Do come out, Mr. Lizard, and play with me! I have seen you so often, and yet we have never really met. I am Two-Legs, who lives in the house by

ADAIR HONORED BY BEING SELECTED AS COURT CAPTAIN

David A. Aird, forward, was recently elected honorary captain of the Cedarville College basketball team for the season just closed, it is disclosed.

A letter man in three sports, the honor of being chosen captain in any branch of athletics has come to A. Aird in his senior year for the first time.

Only better men on the court squad participated in the election. Cedarville has abolished the practice of electing captains in all sports in favor of a plan of naming a player as honorary captain at the end of the season.

A. Aird played on the basketball team for four years and the football eleven for three seasons. He did not attend school the first semester of the 1922-23 gridiron season and was not available. He will play baseball this spring for the fourth straight year.

GLEANERS MAY BUY NATIONAL HOME

DEFIANCE, O., March 28.—Plans for raising approximately $25,000 among Defiance County and northwestern Ohio farmers, assisted by the Defiance Chamber of Commerce, for purchase of the farm near here of the late Thomas C. Elliott as the site for the proposed national home for gleaners, will be presented tonight when the Defiance County association of the Ancient Order of Gleaners will meet at Jewell.

The movement to establish such a home, with the Defiance site preferred, was first announced by R. L. Holloway, national president, at the gleaners state meeting in Toledo in February.

The late Mr. Elliott was a charter member of the Maumee arbor of Defiance and advocates of the Defiance site declare establishment of the home on his former farm would be fitting.

At the present time the national organization is going forward with raising of $250,000 for maintenance of the proposed home. The $25,000 fund to be sought in northwestern Ohio would be merely to purchase the farm which would then be turned over to the national organization.

BILL HAYWOOD NEAR DEATH AT MOSCOW

MOSCOW, March 28.—Bill Haywood, former Chicago I. W. W. leader, who fled America to escape going to jail today faces death from diabetes here.

A week ago, Haywood was removed to the Kremlin Hospital suffering from a severe attack of diabetes.

Physicians attending the former American labor leader today declared that his condition was extremely serious and that complete recovery was impossible.

Since leaving America, Haywood has engaged in many idealistic industrial ventures which he initiated under the sponsorship of the Soviet government. He is now sixty-five years of age and has been in Russia about seven years.

Sport Ritticisms by BILL RITT

A mid-westerner won a pie-eating contest by consuming ten pies. He was awarded with a medal and indignation.

He opened with a custard, countered with a rhubarb, drove two Boston creams to the ropes and was in a clinch with a pumpkin in a la mode at the bell.

Pastry punishing isn't a pastime. It's a pleasure. It's the one sport in which everybody would like to make the first team.

Pie eating is strictly an American rite, performed on Yankee table cloths and dedicated to United States appetite.

Pie is the most democratic form of indigestion. It rolls in lunch kits and on priceless plates of plutocrats with the same edible ease and tasty indifference.

The history of America is replete with the heroism of this delectable dish. It bolstered the boy on Bunker Hill, was gulped at Gettysburg and is now the very backbone of all patriotic cook books.

No politician has ever refused to applaud pie and then was elected president, for pastry is a sacred symbol of the republic close to the inner feelings of us all.

WHY YOUR STOMACH ACHES & GRUMBLES

Your stomach "grumbles" because it tries to tell you it is out of order. Heed its warning, for although the trouble may not yet be serious, it is often the forerunner of severe gastritis and stomach ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapiesin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

Get a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapiesin" today, for it not only brings instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach "Pape's Diapiesin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent further disorders.

According to Mrs. Jewett she leased the property to Hicks for one year under an agreement that he was not to sub-let.

ADAIR HONORED BY BEING SELECTED AS COURT CAPTAIN

David Adair, forward, was recently elected honorary captain of the Cedarville College basketball team for the season just closed. It is disclosed.

A letter man in three sports, the honor of being chosen captain in any branch of athletics has come to Adair in his senior year for the first time.

Only letter men on the court squad participated in the election. Cedarville has abolished the practice of electing captains in all sports in favor of a plan of naming a player as honorary captain at the end of the season.

Adair played on the basketball team for four years and the football eleven for two seasons. He did not attend school the first semester of the 1926-27 gridiron season and was not available. He will play baseball this spring for the fourth straight year.

GLEANERS MAY BUY NATIONAL HOME

DEFIANCE, O., March 28.—Plans for raising approximately $26,000 among Defiance County and northwestern Gleaner arborers, assisted by the Defiance Chamber of Commerce, for purchase of the farm near here of the site for the proposed national home for Gleaners, will be presented tonight when the Defiance County Association of the Ancient Order of Gleaners will meet at Jewell.

The movement to establish such a home, with the Defiance site preferred, was first announced by R. L. Holloway, national president, at the Gleaners state meeting in Toledo in February.

The late Mr. Elliott was a charter member of the Maumee arbor of Defiance and advocates of the Defiance site declare establishment of the home on his former farm would be fitting.

At the present time the national organization is going forward with raising of $250,000 for maintenance of the proposed home. The $26,000 fund to be sought in northwestern Ohio would be merely to purchase the farm which would then be turned over to the national organization.

BILL HAYWOOD NEAR DEATH AT MOSCOW

MOSCOW, March 28.—Bill Haywood, former Chicago labor leader, who fled America to escape going to jail today faces death from diabetes here.

A week ago, Haywood was removed to the Kremlin Hospital suffering from a severe attack of diabetes.

Physicians attending the former American labor leader today declared that his condition was extremely serious and that complete recovery was impossible.

Since leaving America, Haywood has engaged in many idealistic industrial ventures which he initiated under the sponsorship of the Soviet government. He is now sixty-five years of age and has been in Russia about seven years.

Sport Ritticisms by BILL RITT

A mid-westerner won a pie-eating contest by consuming ten pies. He was awarded with a medal and indignation.

He opened with a custard, countered with a rhubarb, drove two Boston creams to the ropes and was in a clinch with a pumpkin in a mode at the bell.

Pie eating isn't a pastime, it's a pleasure. It's the one sport in which everybody would like to make the first team.

Pie eating is strictly an American rite, performed on Yankee cable cloths and dedicated to United States appetite.

Pie is the most democratic form of indigestion. It lolls in lunch kits and on priceless plates of platters with the same edible ease and tasty indifference.

The history of America is replete with the heroism of this delectable dish. It bolstered the boys on Bunker Hill, was gulped at Gettysburg and is now the very backbone of all patriotic cook books.

No politician has ever refused to applaud pie and then was elected president, for pastry is a sacred symbol of the republic close to the inner feelings of us all.

WHY YOUR STOMACH ACHES & GRUMBLES

Your stomach "grumbles" because it tries to tell you it is out of order. Heed its warning, for although the trouble may not yet be serious, it is often the forerunner of severe gastritis and stomach ulcers.

Nine times out of ten indigestion and allied stomach disorders are due to excess stomach acid, which impedes normal digestion and forms sour gases that cause intense pain. To restore good digestion you must eliminate this cause. A tablet of "Pape's Diapiesin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

Get a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapiesin" today for it not only brings instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach "Pape's Diapiesin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent further disorders.

CEDARVILLE DIAMOND SQUAD PREPARES FOR STIFF SCHEDULE

The resounding crack of baseball bat against the horseshoe is already heard on the Cedarville College diamond.

A fifteen game schedule is in prospect for the college nine. Eight games have been arranged definitely, four more have been tentatively booked and Coach Marvin Borst hopes to fill in three more open dates to round out the schedule.

Cedarville will open its season against Wilberforce University on the latter's diamond April 16. Eighteen candidates answered Coach Borst's first call for baseball material last week and the players, favored by fair weather, have been indulging in frequent workouts.

The baseball diamond is in the best condition in years. The infield has a good growth of grass and the outfield has been leveled by cutting away the hilly part in center field.

The outlook for a successful season is considered good although graduation last year developed a number of problems that Coach Borst must solve.

The pitching staff is giving the mentor of the "Yellow-Jackets," the most anxiety. Nagley, a southpaw, is the only veteran available from last season. Turner, a left-hander, and Smith and Lyon, right-handers, are showing the most promise in early season practice.

Turner has had some experience. Smith has displayed plenty of steam but lacks control. Lyon has a fair assortment of benders but also suffers from a tendency toward wild pitches. These deficiencies are expected to be corrected in time.

The catching staff gives no cause for worry. Numerous candidates are available. Adair is back from last year and other likely boys are Fisher, of Bath Twp.; Morton, produced Pleasant Hill, O., and Turner, of Solon.

Nagley and Smith are expected to alternate at first base when not pitching. Smith may get first call because of his ability to hit. Clarence Lyon, who played some last season, looks like the best bet for second base.

The left field of the infield also presents a perplexing problem because of the absence of veteran material. Walter Boyer, diminutive player from Good Hope, O., is being tried out at shortstop and is doing as well as can be expected, barring a relapse.

Third base has two candidates in Osborne, Granville, O., and Gibson, each boy is trying hard and Coach Borst remains hopeful.

In the outfield, Tanner, Beaver Creek Twp., has a strangle hold on center. He played regularly in this position last year and was the team's outstanding gardener. Armstrong, who earned a letter last season, is again chasing fly balls in the pasture. Silva Lyon, Van Lear, Ky., has shown great outfield form and is one of the fastest players on the squad. Much is expected from him.

Dates have not been fixed for games scheduled with Wilberforce and Rio Grande College. Cedarville will play each of the two schools twice, one at home and once away.

Following is the incomplete schedule, which includes five games at home and three away:

April 16—Wilberforce away.
April 26—Defiance at home.
May 2—Antioch at home.
May 4—Wilberforce at home.
May 12—University of Dayton away.

May 16—University of Dayton at home.
May 26—Muskingum at home.
May 31—Antioch away.

LINDBERGH MUSEUM PLAN IS BLOCKED

DETROIT, March 28.—William H. Hicks, who resides at 1120 Forest Ave., birth place of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was restrained yesterday from making the property over into a "Lindbergh museum."

According to Mrs. Jewett she leased the property to Hicks for one year under an agreement that he was not to sublet it.

In asking the restraining order Mrs. Jewett charges that Hicks has assigned the lease to other persons who, with Clark C. Doughty, whom she describes as a Chicago promoter, intend to convert the property into a "Lindbergh museum" charge the public twenty-five cents admission and sell souvenirs.

PACKARD ESTATE IN TRUST FOR WIDOW

WARREN, O., March 28.—The bulk of the $4,000,000 estate of the late James Ward Packard, founder of the Packard Automobile Co. of Detroit, is placed in trust with most of the income to go to Packard's widow, according to reports received here today from Jamestown, N. Y., where the automotive pioneer's will is on file.

A trust fund is provided in the will for the Christ Episcopal Church of Warren and a valuable collection of watches will be given to the Cleveland Museum of Art.

READ THIS FIRST:

Lynda Fenton, daughter of John Fenton, a periodical drunkard, has obtained her first job in the offices of Armitage and Son, textile manufacturers.

Her father, kind enough when he is sober, continually, when under the influence of liquor, hurls insults at her and her mother, who, according to him, deserted her father when she was a baby.

Reeling across the kitchen the evening of her first day at work, Lynda Fenton, stumbling, clutches Armitage for support, inflicts a bad scratch on her shoulder, and then storms out of the house.

Later her one friend and companion, David Kenmore, drops in and accidentally learns of her hurt. David is bathing Lynda's inflamed shoulder at the moment her father comes back to the house.

She is barely able to keep the two men from coming to blows. He has obtained the job for her at Armitage & Son. But he begins to regret this when it is known that Ralph Armitage has "spotted" Lynda.

The second day in the office Lynda becomes acquainted with Emily Andrews, who has the desk next to hers.

Emily cultivates her in order to keep David better, as she cherishes a secret fondness for him.

Lynda's new friend invites her to lunch, but having no money, she refuses; and David, seeing through the excuse, invites both girls to lunch with him. At the same time he foolishly says he was waiting to take Emily to luncheon, whereupon Lynda very curtly refuses the invitation and walks away.

Emily, alone with David, begs him to tell her about his "childhood's passion."

In the girls' rest room Emily gives what she terms the "low down on the new town." Claire Stanhope champions Lynda, and when Emily says she's going to have Lynda invited to a certain party she says Emily wants to throw Lynda at Ralph Armitage's head so she may have a clear chance at David.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER VI EMILY GIVES LYNDIA ADVICE

"I don't see why you're so concerned about Lynda, Claire," said Emily, when all the girls were gossiping about her after luncheon.

"We all have to take our chance with life. As far as I am concerned, I think David Kenmore is worth a hundred Ralph Armitages, but I'm so tired pounding the old typewriter I could die, and if anybody offered me a Rolls-Royce, and a studio apartment, I'd immediately say good-bye to Mr. Underwood and Mr. Remington without a tear."

"Soft pedal, girls. Here comes Gallon."

There was a wild scurrying as the office superintendent came in search of them.

That evening, as Lynda hauled her shabby coat out of the locker, Emily dashed up to her and said: "Say, Lyn, old dear, you've broken all the rules of the union."

Lynda looked startled.

"You've turned in more work than any two girls today. That won't do at all. What's the big idea? You'll have the whole office down on you. Go slow, baby, go slow, or there won't be enough work to go around."

"But—but, I thought," stammered Lynda.

"Don't think it's not a paying proposition—and you'll soon learn the less you do and get by with, the better off you'll be. Come over here. I want you to know the bunch."

Lynda was never so embarrassed in her life as when Emily girls, in the employ of Armitage & Son, were presented to her, one by one.

She felt, as they looked her over, that her frock was terrible, her shoes shabby, and that she made a sorry figure. However, she managed to smile at Claire Stanhope.

She was glad to see her. It seemed to her that Claire was an old, old acquaintance whom she could now claim as a friend.

As for the others—she was not sure that any of them welcomed her there. Of one thing she was sure and that was that Emily Andrews, although she seemed so friendly, wouldn't welcome her anywhere under any circumstances.

Emily thought that her smiles disarmed everyone. She did not know, at that time, that there is nothing which sharpens one woman's opinion of another as an interest in the same man.

Lynda felt the tears very near to overflowing as the girls in the office crowded about her. She got away as soon as possible. The girls spoke a different language.

On the way home David overtook her.

"Why didn't you go in with us this noon and have some kind of a lunch, Lyn?" he asked. "I'll bet you haven't had a thing to eat all day. Don't you know that you cannot work if you don't eat?"

"I don't know very much, David," she returned. "But I do know that two is company and three a crowd when you and Miss Andrews are to go."

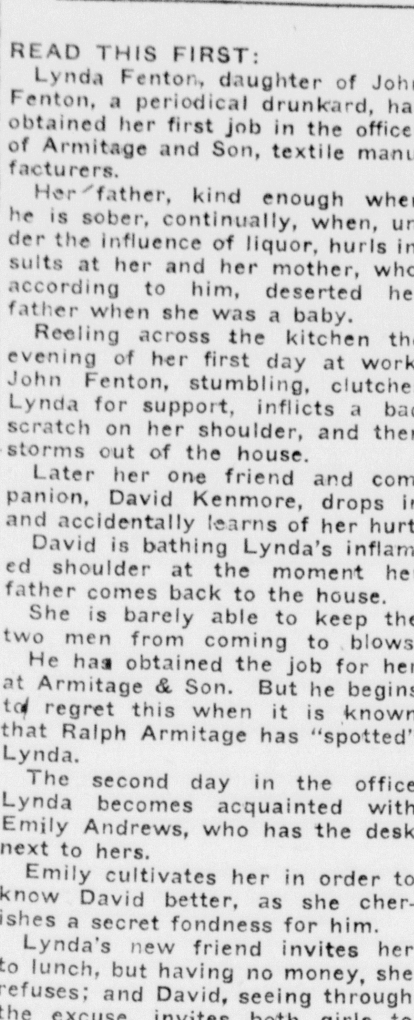

"Didn't it strike you, my dear, that in this particular case the 'company' might be you and me, and the 'crowd' Emily Andrews?"

David hadn't meant to say just

this, for he was still somewhat under the spell of Emily's china blue eyes, but it came out quite a much to his surprise as to Lynda's.

She turned eloquent eyes upon him. She had not yet learned to mask her feelings. To her he was the one person on earth whom she could trust and to whom she could go with every thought of her innocent mind, every emotion of her awakening heart.

That David had invited Emily to luncheon because she had made him do so was a great salve to Lynda's sensitiveness. She had been learning much besides the technique of her job in the last few days.

Strange as it may seem, Lynda Fenton had grown up in such a solitary fashion that she knew very little about women, young or old, including herself. Under the lash of her father's tongue, she had come to accept his terrible dictum on her sex. She was also hurt and ashamed that her mother had committed a greater sin than the average woman. She had been a traitor to motherhood. According to her father, she had deserted her helpless baby, for the sake of gratifying her lawless love and greed for luxury.

When Lynda had looked around the room full of girls today, she had wondered if any of them had

START EXCAVATION FOR MASTODONS

COSHOCTON, O., March 28.—Excavation will start on a farm near here soon for bones believed to be those of a mastodon.

The bones are said to be on the farm of J. W. Forney, who claims that sixty years ago on the farm he now owns, tenants attempted to dig a well but could dig no deeper than 40 feet as huge bones of some large animal prevented further progress.

One bone measured five feet in length and six inches in diameter. Forney is a collector of relics and oddities and judging from the size of the bone found he believes the find, if made, will be valuable. His collection now contains 6,000 articles found in Coshocton, Geauga, and Tuscarawas Counties.

ATTEND MEETING
More than 17,000 Ohio farmers have been issued policies during the past year, and the total number issued has reached a total of more than 24,000 in less than two years time. It was reported last Thursday and Friday at the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau Mutual Automobile Insurance Company. Representing this county in attendance at the meeting were
L. E. Evans and Wm. W. Anderson.
Approximately 250 farmer members and agents attended the meeting, as well as forty-five county farm bureau office secretaries of Ohio, Stark, Wood, Mahoning, Columbiana, Lucas, Ashland, and Licking Counties were high in the list of counties ranked by the number of policies issued.Delegates from this county reported that the record of policies issued since formation of the company, when it is considered that only Ohio farmers have been eligible, is thought to be a record in insurance growth.The organization was formed early in 1926 as a mutual organization to serve farmers, whose automobile risks are less than those of the city or average automobile owner. At the request of farmers of Maryland and West Virginia the organization recently expanded to cover those states.The third sensational feat performed by the hypnotist will take place at the special Saturday matinee which starts at 2:30 o'clock.
Mr. Q will hypnotize a young man and command him to ride a bicycle until awakened that night. The hypnotized cyclist will be removed from the theater Saturday afternoon and taken to the Famous Auto Supply Co., W. Main St.,
where he will be placed in the window and will continue to pedal his bicycle in plain view of passers-by until 8 o'clock when he will be removed to the theater and awakened on the stage.In addition to these features which will be free, Mlle. Delores, who has astounded thousands by her remarkable ability to foretell future events, locate lost or stolen articles and give real advice, will make personal appearances at various stores, where she can be interviewed and will be glad to answer questions free of charge.The Mysterious Mr. Q and his company of assistants, including Mlle. Delores, is coming here through the co-operation of The Gazette with Xenia merchants.
Popular prices will be charged for the performances at the Opera

IN TRUST FOR WIDOWWARREN, O., March 28.—The bulk of the $4,000,000 estate of the late James Ward Packard, founder of the Packard Automobile Co., of Detroit, is placed in trust with most of the income to go to Packard's widow, according to reports received here today from Jamestown, N. Y., where the automotive pioneer's will is on file.A trust fund is provided in the will for the Christ Episcopal Church of Warren and a valuable collection of watches will be given to the Cleveland Museum of Art.Lynda Fenton, daughter of John Fenton, a periodical drunkard, has obtained her first job in the office of Armitage and Son, textile manufacturers.Her father, kind enough when he is sober, continually, when, under the influence of liquor, hurls insults at her and her mother, who,
according to him, deserted her father when she was a baby.Reeling across the kitchen the evening of her first day at work,
Lynda Fenton, stumbling, clutches
Lynda for support, inflicts a bad scratch on her shoulder, and then storms out of the house.Later her mother and companion, David Kenmore, drive in and accidentally learns of her hurt.
David is bathing Lynda's inflamed shoulder at the moment her father comes back to the house.She is barely able to keep the two men from coming to blows.
He has obtained the job for her at Armitage & Son. But he begins to regret this when it is known that Ralph Armitage has "spotted"
Lynda.The second day in the office
Lynda becomes acquainted with Emily Andrews, who has the desk
next to hers. At the same time he foolishly says he was waiting to take Emily to luncheon, whereupon Lynda very curtly refuses the invitation and walks away.Emily, alone with David, begs him to tell her about his "childhood's passion."In the girls' rest room Emily gives what she terms the "flow-down on the stenog." Claire Stanhope champions Lynda, and when Emily says she's going to have Lynda invited to a certain party she says Emily wants to throw Lynda at Ralph Armitage's head so she may have a clear chance at David.

CHAPTER VI
EMILY GIVES LYNDIA ADVICE"I don't see why you're so concerned about Lynda, Claire," said Emily, when all the girls were gossiping about her after luncheon."We all have to take our chance with life. As far as I am concerned, I think David Kenmore is worth a hundred Ralph Armitages,
but I'm so tired pounding the old typewriter I could die, and if anybody offered me a Rolls-Royce, and a studio apartment, I'd immediately say good-bye to Mr. Kenwood and Mr. Remington without a tear.""Soft pedal, girls. Here comes Gallop."There was a wild scurrying as the office superintendent came in search of them.The evening, as Lynda hailed her shabby coat out of the locker,
Emily dashed up to her and said:
"Say, Lyn, old dear, you've broken
all the rules of the union."

Lynda looked startled.

"You've turned in more work than any two girls today. That won't do at all, will it? You'll have the whole office down on
you. Go slow, baby, go slow, or there won't be enough work to go around.""But—but, I thought," stammered
Lynda—
"Don't think—it's not a paying proposition—and you'll soon learn the lesson you do and get by with,
the better off you'll be. Come over here. I want you to know the bunch."Lynda was never so embarrassed in her life as when fifteen girls, in the employ of Armitage & Son, were presented to her, one by one.
She felt, as they looked her over,
that her frock was terrible, her shoes shabby, and that she made a sorry figure. However, she managed to smile at Claire Stanhope, to her that Claire was an old, old acquaintance whom she could now claim as a friend.As for the others—she was not sure that any of them welcomed her there. Of one thing she was sure and that was that Emily Andrews, although she seemed so friendly, wouldn't welcome her anywhere under any circumstances.Emily thought that her smiles disarmed everyone. She did not know that time that there is nothing which sharpens one woman's opinion of another as an interest in the same man.Lynda felt the tears very near to overflowing as the girls in the office crowded about her. She got away as soon as possible. These girls spoke a different language.
On the way home David overtook
her."Why didn't you go in with us this noon and have some kind of a lunch, Lyn?" he asked. "I'll bet you haven't had a thing to eat all day.
Don't you know that you cannot work if you don't eat?""I don't know very much, David," she returned. "But I do know that there is a company and three a crowd when you and Miss Andrews are together.""Didn't it strike you, my dear, that in this particular case the company might be you and me,
and the 'crowd' Emily Andrews?"
David hadn't meant to say just

The Theater

By C. K.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A professional moviegoer's week:

Sunday—To see "Czar Ivan the Terrible" which seems to me to be screened history in ideal form. More is to be learned from it about the background of the modern Russian state than from many authoritative books on the subject; and it is an exciting story. Produced by Sovkino, the soviet film monopoly, it is free from what might be deemed "Red propaganda." L. M. Leonidoff, of the Moscow Art theater, as Ivan, outjannings Jannings.

Monday—Went to view "Heart of a Polles Girl," with Billie Dove, which is so bad a picture that even the trade papers are rapping it. Walked out after several reels, and dropped in to see "Dressed to Kill," of eminence in the films. Her real name is Heermance. She liked her part in "Four Sons," but says she's prouder of her work in the forthcoming "Huangman's House," from Donn Byrne's popular novel.

Thursday—George Hill, who directed the new Renee Adoree-John Gilbert picture, "The Cossacks," is here, on his way to Europe, and modestly says it's great. He agrees that Gilbert deserves popularity for his good acting ability as well as for his good looks.

Friday—Spent the morning with Adolphe Menjou, the bridegroom-to-be. He was nervous because of fear he'd flop when he made his broadcasting debut in the evening. His voice must have surprised fans: it isn't the kind one would associate with the type of character with which he is associated in the public mind.

Saturday—"The Night Flyer," produced under James Cruze's supervision, is an exciting railroad melodrama with William Boyd. It is what a movie should be: moving. Cruze never has been given proper credit for his genius in developing action of high pictorial quality.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

The Theater

By C. K.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A professional moviegoer's week:

Sunday—To see "Czar Ivan the Terrible" which seems to me to be screened history in ideal form. More is to be learned from it about the background of the modern Russian state than from many authoritative books on the subject; and it is an exciting story. Produced by Sovkino, the Soviet film monopoly, it is free from what might be deemed "red propaganda." L. M. Leonidoff, of the Moscow Art theater, as Ivan, outjannings Jannings.

Monday—Went to view "Heart of a Foolish Girl," with Billie Dove, which is so bad a picture that even the trade papers are rapping it. Walked out after several reels, and dropped in to see "Dressed to Kill,"

Hailed as another Mexican find for the movies, Maria Casajuan is basking in the smiles of film-dom. Friends believe the girl will prove to be another Dolores Del Rio.

with Edmund Lowe and Mary Astor, No. 23 or 24 in the deluge of crook pictures loosened by "Underworld." It is better entertainment than most of them.

Tuesday—Stars don't "make" a picture, "The Secret Hour" proves again. It has Pola Negri, Jean Hersholt, and Kenneth Thomson, and it is about as dull as they make them. Pola needs a good story badly. "The Secret Hour," by the way, was suggested by "They Knew What They Wanted," the Pulitzer prize play banned by Will Hays, the well-known bond salesman.

Wednesday—At Harry Collins' tea, at which he explained his new "Emotion-ism" in dress. Met Jane Collyer, who is taller than movie heroines are supposed to be. She's one of the few native New Yorkers who have achieved a measure

TO ESTABLISH HEADQUARTERS FOR HOME COMING HERE SOON

The executive committee in charge of plans for the 1928 Home Coming in Xenia the latter part of August, expects to open up headquarters about April 1, it was decided at the weekly committee meeting Monday night.

Miss Josephine Wolf has been appointed secretary in charge of the headquarters. It is planned to obtain a room as centrally located as possible where all business in connection with the event may be transacted.

The committee has not found a suitable location but will at least establish temporary headquarters in a week to arrange preliminary details.

All residents of the city are being asked to submit names of former Xenians at the earliest possible date in order that invitations may be mailed to all parts of the country.

The committee desires to obtain names and addresses of former residents at once in an effort to communicate with former Xenians and have them arrange to spend vacations this summer in Xenia attending the home-coming—the first here in twenty years.

If they are not notified of the home-coming plans soon it is feared the invitations may arrive too late for many former residents to come to Xenia for the four days because of previous plans.

No new business was transacted at the executive committee meeting Monday night. Chairmen of the recently appointed "key" committees submitted reports on progress being made.

Present plans, it is announced, call for the addition of only one more "key" committee to those already appointed, although these committees are expected to be expanded eventually by the addition of more names. Possibility of the appointment of a reception committee is foreseen.

YOUTH ACCUSED OF BEFRIENDING MAN, THEN ROBBING HIM

Accused of befriending and then robbing a man of $21.25, William Byrd, 17, colored, this city, is in the County Jail facing charges of delinquency and theft.

The charges were filed by police on the testimony of Lewis Allen, 50, colored, 422 Lexington Ave., who is reported to have declared Byrd assisted him to his home after he had been drinking liquor Saturday night. Byrd first gave him $2.00, and then took advantage of his condition to rob him of $21.25.

When arrested by Patrolmen George Robinson and Jesse Dorton Saturday night, Byrd gave his age as 22. A search of his clothes at Police Headquarters failed to reveal a trace of the money.

Max John W. Frush prepared an affidavit against him. When all papers had been made out, Byrd was brought into court and reversed his previous statement by admitting his true age as "under 18."

During the proceedings Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, "frisked" the prisoner once more and discovered $15 concealed among some papers in the seat of his trousers. Byrd, police say admitted this was the major part of the money alleged to have been stolen.

Because he is under age, police transferred the case to Juvenile Court. Juvenile Judge S. C. Wright has set the case for a hearing April 5 at 2 p. m.

IF RHEUMATIC EAT NO SWEETS

Says glass of salts help to overcome Rheumatism acid

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, and above all, drink plenty of good water and avoid eating sweets of all kind.

Rheumatism is caused by body waste and acids resulting from food fermentation. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine, the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity.

When damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and strained and fail to eliminate this waste and acids, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first warning of rheumatism stop any further about 1000 grains of Epsom Salts, put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste matter, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus often reducing the blood of rheumatic poisons.

Epsom Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.
